Antioch area schools tighten security for new year

By JULIANA WALSWORTH
Staff Reporter

Antioch area schools have upgraded school security.

All Antioch grade schools have installed a camera and buzzer unit at building main entrances.

The main entrances of all schools are the only entrances where people may enter the building. All other entrance ways are locked at all times.

Students must push a buzzer button before entering the building. A secretary is watching a video monitor to determine who will be allowed to enter the building during school hours.

All staff members have a swipe card to allow themselves and their students to enter and exit the building.

Substitute teachers and visitors are also required to wear temporary badges while in the building.

The cost of this year's upgraded security came out of the School District funding.

Matt Tabar, superintendent of Emmon School District said, "We haven't had any significant security problems although we have rethought emergency plans."

Two-way radios have been purchased for Emmon School District. There will always be a radio at the playground, the front office, and with the physical education instructor.

Designated teachers have been assigned to have two-way radios in the classroom with them. These designated teachers will be responsible for communicating with other staff members during an emergency.

Antioch High School upgraded their security last year but with the addition to the building extra equipment was needed. Cameras were added and there is now a total of 16 cameras throughout the school.

During school hours all doors of the high school are locked except for the main entrance, which is monitored. Students are required to carry IDs.

Wapon joins 'Hall of Fame'

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ

Continuing his usual class act manner, Steve Wapon expresses his sincere gratitude to all who made his Sequoit Hall of Fame induction ceremony such a memorable experience.

In an open letter to the community, Wapon said, "I would like to take a moment to forward a sincere thank you to all of the wonderful people who have called, sent cards, and were part of the Antioch Community High School (ACHS) Athletic Hall of Fame recognition program."

"In particular, I would like to extend appreciation to Steve Schoenfelder, ACHS athletic director, members of the Hall of Fame Committee, and the football mothers for all of their time and effort in making this event such a very special time in my career," Wapon said.

"The faculty and staff of Antioch Community High School are very fortunate to have a continued partnership with the outstanding students, and the dedicated parents, from the communities of Antioch, Lake Villa and Lindenhurst," Wapon concluded.

"During the past year, I have served on the Task Force for Elder Abuse which has educated me as to the need for focusing more to the care of our senior citizens in our district," Osmond added.

"I will be asking for the support of the voters of the 62nd District in allowing me to be re-elected as their State Representative in November of 2000," concluded Osmond.

Osmond announces bid for re-election in 62nd

Using the backdrop of a rock n' roll political fund raiser, State Rep. Tim Osmond (R-Antioch) announced his bid for re-election to the Illinois House of Representatives for the 62nd District in the fall of 2000.

"I have worked hard to respond to the people of the 62nd District and look forward to year 2000 in continuing the efforts started in my first term," said Osmond, speaking before a crowd of 200 enthusiastic supporters at Midlane Country Club in Wadsworth.

Osmond sees the district as one which is continuing to grow. This results in a district needing careful planning "to preserve our natural

Housing plan draws residents' ire

Village board to consider 160-home development

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

Sharon Militano is sick and tired of seeing all the beautiful natural lands in her area being eaten up by development.

So, when she heard about plans for a new residential development on the northwest corner of Route 59 and Beach Grove Road, she decided she wasn't going to let it happen without a fight.

"We just see wildlife out there all the time. There are sandhill cranes nesting there. If they develop that property, where will they go?" said Militano, whose home is located directly across from the proposed development.

After hearing objections from residents like Militano at a public meeting in late August, the Village of Antioch's Zoning Board of Appeals voted 6-0 to deny a request by Diamond Development to build 160 homes on the 80-acre parcel of land just south of Antioch.

Diamond Development, which is also developing the Heron Harbor subdivision, is seeking to have the property annexed into the village and requests a zoning change from agricultural to residential to allow for a planned unit development on the site.

Despite the zoning board's action, the Antioch Village Board will make the final decision on the developer's request. A public hearing on the issue is tentatively set for Sept. 20 at the Antioch Village Hall.

Bob Silhan, director of planning, zoning and building for the village, said he doesn't know given the zoning board's recommendation if the developer will move forward with the current proposal or submit a revised plan.

Silhan said his department prepared an initial report on the project indicating support for possible approval of the development. He said the staff report concluded there might be some benefits of the project in terms of sanitary sewer and water main improvements to that area.

The developer would create a sanitary sewer extension down Route 59 that would hook up Emmons School to village sewer and water services. "With sanitary sewer, it would free up space on their (the school's) site for future addition," said Silhan. The school must currently maintain its own well and septic system on site, which takes up a lot of room, he said.

Militano, however, believes the development will create more problems for the schools by adding even more students. She said 300 new homes are already planned in the Heron Harbor subdivision and this development would add another 160 homes on top of that.

"Look at the number of children going into an already overcrowded school system. We're already overtaxed," Militano said. She also has concerns about traffic congestion at the corner of Route 59 and Beach Grove Road and the loss of another valuable piece of natural land to development.

Militano wonders why the developer would spend so much on a parcel of property, without having prior approval to develop the land unless something is going on "behind the scenes." She said she has heard estimates the developer spent close to $1.5 million on the 80-acre parcel, which is significantly more than the appraised price.

"It just seems awfully strange that somebody would take a gamble like that. That's kind of risky not knowing what the outcome will be," she said.

County Board member Judy Martini (R-Antioch) represents residents from the district where the development is proposed.

Martini also serves on the Lake County Forest Preserve Board, which Private schools address security

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

The parochial and private schools within the Lindenhurst and Lake Villa areas use a variety of methods to help secure their facilities.

Prince of Peace, a K-8 Catholic grade school on Route 83 in Lake Villa, has the luxury of being small. The school has 215 total students.

"At 9 a.m., all doors are locked," explained Principal Dave Worklan. "The main door is locked at 9 a.m., with a buzzer ringing in the main office where either myself or the secretary are the only two persons allowed to open the door for anyone."

"Generally, I myself do it, because I have a really clear view of anyone approaching the front door," Worklan explained. "Any parents or visitors coming to the school must check in at the school office. The students are instructed not to let anyone in, even if it's their parents, until one of us comes to the door."

"I admit, we don't know every single parent," Worklan said. "I try to get the door myself most of the time, especially if a unknown man comes to the door. If they don't have a real reason to be at the school, or are suspicious in anyway, I get them out of here. I take the chances myself."

"Ten years ago, when I started locking the doors, I think I alienated a lot of parents," Worklan admits. "We've never had an incident with a child with a weapon, and we've never had a reason to check anyone in the 10 years I've been here."

"We always have an adult with the students," Worklan continued. "Because we're so small, usually within the first week our kindergartners know the eighth graders by name. It's really a family type atmosphere which helps add to security. We don't have the situations like they would in much larger public schools."

Worklan is not yet requiring identification cards for teachers or students. The Lake Villa Police Department has been helpful in any cases of vandalism or damage done to the school building, according to Worklan.

Derrick Ellis, director of educational programs for Antioch High School who oversees Allendale School in Lake Villa, uses similar policies. There is one main entrance near the administrative offices which is unlocked during the school day. Other entrances are locked from the outside.

All staff are required to wear photo identification cards at all times. Ellis explained a crisis intervention person and one administrative supervisor are in the hallways at all times.

There is a school building evacuation policy and procedure in place, with yearly practice drills held with the students and staff. There are lock down procedures if needed, according to Ellis.

Phones and intercom systems are in all rooms, giving staff direct contact to the administrative office if necessary.

Gateway in Lake Villa has a similar procedure. "We're a completely secure facility at all times," Jerry Pitz, director of Gateway educational program, explained. "There is one entrance to the building which is open during the school day. That entrance leads into a reception area which is always staffed."

"Any person coming through the entrance, staff or student or visitor, must sign in," Pitz continued. "No one (student) is allowed to leave the building unless verification is made regarding where they are going with the people in the area which they say they are supposed to be visiting."

All Gateway staff have IDs. School staff currently do not, due to the logistics of obtaining the IDs through Gateway's Chicago office, explained Pitz. Students do not have IDs; however, everyone, staff and students alike are monitored on a board at the reception area. This includes if people are off campus.

"We know where all staff and residents are at any given time," Pitz said.

In the evening and overnight, the building is completely secured with an alarm system for all doors and windows. "A person wouldn't be able to do what they did at Littleton (Colo.) where they were bringing stuff into the building at night," Pitz explained. "You can't open any doors or windows without setting off the alarm."

At Central Baptist Children's Home (CBCH) in Lake Villa, a small population of students attend the on-campus alternative school geared to help children with educational and/or behavioral problems.

"We have such a small population, it hasn't been an issue," explained Amy Younts, CBCH director of public relations, regarding breaches of security. "We haven't had any problems."

Visitors to CBCH are required to call ahead for an appointment, even if they are family members. "They can't just show up," Younts stressed.

As with most schools, CBCH is not locked from the inside, however, it is locked from the outside using a buzzer system to admit persons, Younts explained.

Bright Beginnings Day Care Center located on the CBCH campus uses a door buzzer system for its main entrance, with all other entrances locked.

LeMere confirms Antioch commitment

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Claude LeMere is continuing to work in his position as community development director for the Village of Antioch.

LeMere, along with Village Manager Tim Wells, emphatically denied any possibility that LeMere had been relieved of his duties.

"It is absolutely not true," said Wells, when asked if LeMere had been let go by the village.

"The best thing in my life has been the last 6 1/2 years with the village of Antioch and being involved with the community of Antioch," said LeMere. "I love my job and coming to it every day."

"The work I've done for the community speaks for itself and my dedication to the village," LeMere added.

A rumor was being spread by unnamed business owners that LeMere had been fired.

LeMere intends to be at the ground breaking for the William E. Brook Memorial Entertainment Center, part of the Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center, to be held on Saturday, Sept. 4.

"It's a very detrimental rumor and is absolutely untrue," LeMere said, which was his reply to a village trustee inquiring if he was leaving. "I've never said anything other than I love my job."

Admitting he has received offers from other communities for various positions, some which actually would have paid more, LeMere stands strong in his commitment to remain in Antioch.

"I love this community and am a very faithful guy," LeMere concluded.

The official groundbreaking for the William E. Brook Memorial Entertainment Center will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 4.

The center is being constructed in conjunction with the wetland sanctuary and commemorative brick path and walkway. The sanctuary is located on the east side of Main Street, just behind the downtown business section of Antioch.

The quilt being raffled by The Antioch Women's Club will be on display at area banks beginning Thursday, Sept. 9 during regular bank hours. Raffle tickets for the quilt will be available with proceeds going to the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center.

Landgren had much support from family and friends, including a bus load of the Fast Lane Foods Refreshment Center workers from Wilmot Speedway where Landgren works in the souvenir building and regularly sings the anthem.

Unfortunately, the Sox play did-

Way to go Steve Wapon! Was great seeing the Antioch Community High School (ACHS) legendary coach inducted into the Sequoit Hall of Fame during half-time of the gridiron season opener.

The game was great as well. Just too bad the Sequoits came out on the short end.

Keep up the great work with the golf and softball teams, Steve. You're truly a winner and a champion.

Giving children a voice

Woman protects interests of juveniles while in court system

By ANGELA D. SYKORA
Staff Reporter

All abused and neglected children need someone who cares about their welfare and their future. Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) of Lake County has helped hundreds of area children by giving them a voice in court.

The purpose of CASA, a national non-profit organization that was created by a judge in Seattle, is to protect the interests of the child in the juvenile court system. Because judges are not always provided with sufficient information on the child, it can be difficult to determine what would be best for him or her.

CASA is made up of volunteers, who first go through a training program and are then assigned to a case where they get to know the child and their individual needs. They investigate, evaluate and make recommendations to the court on the child's behalf.

Nearly 650 child advocate programs exist in the U.S. Susan Grant of Wadsworth is the executive director of CASA, Lake County in Vernon Hills.

Grant graduated from Northeastern University School of Law in Boston. She began her career at CASA as a volunteer advocate and hasn't looked back.

"I thought CASA was a great way to combine helping kids and utilize my background in law."

Opened in 1993, CASA, Lake County has over 80 volunteers who are involved in cases that can last more than a year.

Volunteers have a great deal of responsibility, explained Grant.

"Lawyers can change and social services workers often juggle many clients at one time. CASA volunteers are a constant in a child's case."

"They meet with social services, get family assessments, visit the child if they're in foster care, meet with their teachers, counselors, doctors and follow-up with parents. They file a written report of recommendations. They do this until the child is home, or in a safe place," she said.

"They are another set of eyes and ears."

Grant said each volunteer is assigned only one case at a time.

"Some do one case after another. Some take a leave of absence."

Being a volunteer, she said, is also an emotional experience because they work so closely with the case. Grant knows first-hand that it takes a special kind of person to take on the role of child advocate, but it is also extremely rewarding to know you've made a difference in a child's life.

"It's hard dealing with cases of abused and neglected children, but when I see the volunteers, it makes it all worthwhile," she said.

CASA, Lake County is always looking to recruit new volunteer advocates. No special background is needed, just a sincere interest. Volunteers are screened and must complete a 35-hour training program and continuing education. Volunteers spend approximately 10-15 hours a week working on their assigned case.

"Over 600 children in Lake County are waiting for a voice in court. We'd love to hear from anyone with an interest."

For more information on how to become a volunteer, contact CASA, Lake County at 634-2229.

Sheriff lays out driving tips for back to school

With the start of the new school season and the importance of school bus safety, Sheriff Gary Del Re, would like to issue a few safety reminders for those of us who share the roads with not only buses, but the children who are walking to and from the bus stops.

- First, a word to automobile drivers. It is easier for you to notice the presence of a school bus than a bus driver to notice you. The bus driver is trying to not only deliver or pick-up the students but cause minimum of inconvenience to you. This is not always easily done considering the amount of potential distraction facing the driver. Allow the bus some room to operate, and do not pull up too close to the rear of a stopped bus; remember that the driver can not see you there. As the bus is dropping students off, be aware that kids will sometimes run across the road in their hurry to get home, so anticipate their movements.

- Secondly, a word to bus drivers. You have the responsibility of transporting a most valuable commodity, our school children. Parents and school officials who employ your company have every right to expect that you will be prepared in every way to competently and safely transport the children to their destination reasonably on schedule. Be watchful and alert for cars either stopped too closely behind you or who may not obey your stop arm signal. Motorists appreciate you making use of the proper signals when stopping and if stopped, waiting for a child to come out of the house, delay the stop arm until the child is in view and approaching the bus.

- One question that arises often, relates to when a car is required to stop for the bus stop arm. According to the Illinois State statutes, if the roadway was four or more lanes (permitting at least two lanes of traffic to travel in opposite directions), you need not stop if the stopped bus is on the opposing roadway (facing the opposite direction).

- If you are traveling the same direction regardless of the number of lanes available, you must stop if the bus is stopped (with flashing red lights and a stop arm extended).

- If the roadway has less than four lanes, you must stop regardless of the direction of approach.

- The importance of stopping, besides safety, is reflected in the possible penalty for a violation of this statute. A driver may have his license suspended for two months upon conviction.

- Be aware of posted school speed zones and look for the crossing guards who are helping the children cross.

- Parents should be aware of the responsibilities they must assume when their children ride or walk near streets or highways. A copy of the "Bicycle Rules of the Road" is available at the Secretary of States office free of charge. Parents are responsible to make sure that their children's bicycle safety and should always be worn by a child operating a bicycle to protect them from any head injuries.

Luncheon commencing Antioch Womans Club year

It is luncheon time for the GFWC Illinois Antioch Womans Club Wednesday, Sept. 8 at Bonnie Brook Country Club in Waukegan.

The noon luncheon kicks off the series of yearly meetings scheduled for the group. All Antioch area women are invited to attend, according to Carol Pavelski, luncheon chairperson.

For reservations, which are not necessary, or for further information, contact Pavelski 395-0068.

The Antioch Womans Club participates in numerous activities doing community service work, raising funds for local scholarship programs and participating in helping many community organizations.

The focus project for the club for this year is the Winter Project at the William E. Brook Memorial Entertainment Center.

A dinner dance is planned for Oct. 30 with a quilt raffle concluding that evening as well. All proceeds from both fund raisers will be donated to the project.

The quilt will be available for public view at area banks between now and the drawing. Quilt raffle tickets are available at the bank during regular business hours.—By Michael H. Babicz

Recent warrants sweep nets nine

Program part of ongoing effort to collar troublesome criminals

Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re announced the results of the most recent attempt in the ongoing effort to aggressively serve active warrants on wanted persons known to frequent or reside in the northwest area of Lake County.

The "Warrants Sweep" operation occurred during the early morning hours of Aug. 22 and was conducted by the Lake County Sheriff's Office Warrants Division in cooperation with the Sheriff's Office Tactical Unit, police officers from the Round Lake Park-Hainesville Police Department and the Round Lake Heights Police Department.

The current sweep resulted in the arrest of a total of nine people. The people taken into custody were either arrested on site or later presented themselves to the Sheriff's Office in Waukegan on a self-surrender basis.

The department said in a release that it anticipates additional suspects will surrender themselves as a result of this sweep.

Sheriff Del Re said that the main objective of these random and unannounced warrant sweeps is to remove wanted persons from the streets of Lake County. Persons targeted by the warrants sweep operations are said to be those who have avoided apprehensions on numerous prior occasions.

Sheriff Del Re continued by saying that the ongoing warrants sweep operations represent one of several proactive approaches utilized by the Sheriff's Office in providing law enforcement protection to Lake County citizens.

Charges for which each of the arrestees sought include traffic offenses (including aggravated driving under the influence, or DUI,) and criminal offenses including criminal sexual abuse, domestic battery, unlawful use of weapons, resisting arrest, assault, theft and various drug offenses. Arrestees have been identified as:

Jaime Paz, Round Lake, charged with theft.

Randy Miller, Ingleside, charged with DUI.

Daryl Shatley, Antioch, charged with domestic battery.

Michael Brogan, Antioch, charged with disorderly conduct.

David Geocaris, Lake Villa, charged with DUI and obstructing a peace officer.

Sandra Goshinsky, Antioch, charged with DUI.

Sheriff Del Re encourages anyone having information pertaining to the whereabouts of a person known to be wanted to contact the Warrant Division Supervisor, Sgt. Bert L. Foster, Jr. at 360-5200 or at the Lake County Sheriff's Office web page via www.co.lake.il.us/sheriff. This e-mail address allows people with or seeking information on wanted persons to access the Sheriff's Most Wanted List.

Raymond Koch, 28, of 1827 Cedar Lake Rd., has been accused of sexually abusing a 15-year-old girl while she was at his residence on Aug. 19.

The juvenile told police she fell asleep at Koch's home after watching movies, and awoke to find him sexually touching her and using her hand to touch himself.

The juvenile then told a friend and her mother of the abuse and police were informed. During police questioning Koch denied the accusations, stating the juvenile's friends were lying for her and that she had a history of accusing males of sexual assault.

Koch later told police he didn't remember touching the juvenile, who had fallen asleep on his bed. He said he was a heavy sleeper and thought it was his wife, and may have "rolled over" on the juvenile by mistake.

After more questioning, police arrested Koch for aggravated criminal sexual abuse and transported him to bond court. Nineteenth Judicial Circuit Court Associate Judge George Bridges set Koch's bond at $75,000.

Koch will have a preliminary hearing in front of Associate Judge Victoria L. Martin Sept. 7.

Drowning victim is put to rest

Jeremy Ultsh lost his life while drinking with friends and jumping in and out of a boat that capsized into Deep Lake at the end of July.

Ultsh was the only one of the six person group who was unable to swim ashore.

After local fire and rescue departments spent three exhausting weeks attempting to recover the body of Ultsh, the family and local businesses began to raise funds to bring in extra help.

The Trident divers, a Colorado based group of non-for-profit water rescue/recovery experts, came to Lake Villa on Aug. 24 equipped with underwater sonar equipment.

The divers began combing the area during the morning hours of Aug. 24.

Assisted by two local divers, members of Wauconda and Waukegan Fire Department dive teams, the Trident divers concentrated on the area where Ultsh was suspected to have gone down. Tracking dogs brought in earlier helped indicate an approximate area where the body was.

The search continued until the early hours of Aug. 25 before breaking to sleep.

The divers started again mid-morning on Aug. 25, discovering the body around 5 p.m. Barbara Richardson, Lake County Coroner, said the body could be easily identified before autopsy.

RESULTS FOR EVERY BODY OF ALL AGES

The future of fitness has finally arrived in Gurnee - Gold's Gym - with a worldwide reputation for building bodies a better way.

Gold's is designed for those who are serious about their health and levels of fitness.

Gold's Gym has created the largest, most well equipped fitness complex dedicated to one simple concept...RESULTS. With its roots on the southern coast of California, where muscle fever overcame the beaches of Venice - Gold's draws tourists from around the globe.

Sports professionals use the gym to improve their performance, celebrities to improve their appearance, corporate types do it to combat office structure and stress. Mothers do it to reshape after birth. Some do it just for show. Others to push themselves as far as they can go. And yet some do it just to feel more alive by adding years to their life, and life to their years.

From the corporate towers to the suburban homes and schools, people from all walks of life are pumping iron with the best - Gold's Gym.

Now on Nations Drive in the heart of Gurnee, the "Mecca of body building" has arrived.

Gold's Gym has a club layout that is hard to beat. You'll find designated areas for specific workouts: arms, back, chest, legs, abs, with the best selectorized equipment such as Life Cycles, Stairmasters, EFX Precor, and MORE. Everything you will ever need to achieve the maximum results.

In addition Gold's has a super pro shop featuring a complete line of workout apparel for both men and women. The clothing is designed to give you the maximum freedom you need when pumping iron, stretching, or running.

Gold's Gym even offers personal trainers you can hire by the hour for one-on-one training. These guys and gals are real pros who really know their stuff. They will design the optimum workout to produce the best and quickest results.

After a few hours with these professionals, you are well on your way to your fitness goals with less likelihood of injury and a thorough knowledge of the proper usage of the equipment.

After talking with Dick Glass, Gold's Gym Gurnee's owner, you come away with a feeling of total commitment and dedication.

What Gold's Gym has in mind is to get people who are or were serious about working out back into a fitness program.

Another distinction that sets Gold's apart from any other club in Gurnee is the fact that they have approximately 20,000 sq. ft. of pure fitness.

Another unique feature is the weight management program. Through a questionnaire, they take into consideration your age, physical structure, caliper-measured body fat percentage, general health, food preference, and gastronomic reactions to different foods, sleeping patterns, metabolic or oxidation rate, caloric expenditure, and on and on. It's a heads up approach to computerized eating. And as Gold's says "It's Guaranteed to Work or Your Money Back."

Some of the greatest features of the club include: child care, kids club, the best aerobic programs with the flex-floor, saunas, juice bar, complete locker facilities for both men and women, and most of all, a fun and friendly atmosphere. As Dick Glass says, "You've perspired with the amateurs, now come sweat with the pros."

Gold's new location is 1655 Nations Drive, Gurnee.

Gold's Preview Office is located at the Gurnee Holiday Inn at 6161 Grand Avenue in the Great America Room, right off the Front Lobby. The Preview Office is open Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. until 9:00 p.m., Saturday from 9:00 a.m. until 7:00 p.m., and Sunday from 10:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m.

The No Hassle-All Inclusive Honeymoon

by JIM WARNKEN, President, North Star Travel, Inc.

All-inclusive resorts are fast becoming a popular vacation choice since they provide a truly carefree atmosphere.

Even more than the annual vacationer, though, these "one price covers all" properties are attracting many honeymoon couples, and for good reason. At what time in a couple's life is it more important to have a stress-free vacation than on their honeymoon?

At an all-inclusive, there is no need to be concerned about how much to tip the guy who brings your bags to your room. You'll never suffer "sticker shock" from the menu prices at resort restaurants. No need to think twice about what your bar bill will be if you order that fancy rum drink with the umbrella in it. No $30 per hour costs for wind-surfing or scuba diving lessons. There's also no charge for the great entertainment you'll be treated to every night.

All this, and much more is included in the one up-front price you pay for an all-inclusive resort vacation.

The most popular of the all-inclusives, and one who deals exclusively with couples, is Sandals Resorts.

Sandals offers resorts on the Island of Jamaica, one on Antigua, two on St. Lucia and one on New Providence island in the Bahamas. All include gourmet dining at a choice of restaurants, drinks, anytime snacks, scuba diving, sailing, wind-surfing, entertainment, tips, taxes and a whole lot more. Many even include golf.

Of the Sandals Resorts properties, my personal pick for a honeymoon would be their newest, the Royal Bahamian Resort in the Bahamas. It is quite literally the most elegant all-inclusive resort in the Caribbean Spa Resort by the readers of Conde Nast Traveler. For dinner you have your choice of eight (yes eight!) elegant restaurants. My favorite is Kimonos, which has got to rival the best Oriental restaurant you could find in Chicago.

I would not recommend "Sandals Inn" in Montego Bay, Jamaica, since it is the only Sandals which does not have a private beach. Also, while the larger "Sandals Montego Bay," does have a great beach, it's right next to the airport, so you might want to avoid it, too, unless you grew up around O'Hare, as did I, and the sound of jets is second nature.

While not an "all inclusive," Las Brisas in Acapulco Mexico, with its private pools and fantastic views of the bay, has been a honeymoon tradition since the '60s. I mention this resort because I will be visiting it in a couple of weeks. Catch my review real soon.

The truth behind Labor Day

Webster defines Labor Day as a legal holiday honoring labor. To children, Labor Day simply signifies a day off of school. Adults grudgingly agree Labor Day is more than cook-outs and horse-shoes, it indicates the ending of the summer season and the coming of winter. It means you spend the weekend winterizing the lawn mower and tuning up the snow-blower. You find yourself dragging out the rakes and storing the garden hoses. You are faced with the dilemma of trying to figure out just where you are going to store all those new pieces of patio furniture you bought to compliment your deck.

This is the part of the summer that renders caulking windows, replacing screen doors with storm doors, and filling the wood shed for all those cold nights and warm fires, and perhaps a ComEd power outage. Reality sinks in and, even though you thought buying a boat was a great idea in June, just where the heck are you going to put the thing now that the lake in your back yard will soon be covered with 10 inches of ice. Did you ever think that when you planted all those flowers in May that you were going to have to pull them up in September and dispose of them? Oh no, please don't tell me that was a leaf I saw falling from the maple tree in the front yard.

Still in question is the ban on burning out here in the unincorporated part of the county. Can we or can't we? If we can, start raking, and if we can't — what are we going to do with the droppings of nine acres of oak trees? The season's tricky question is whether or not to detach the lawn mower from the John Deere or leave it in place before attaching the snow plow.

One never can tell if it will show before grass cutting season is over. Of course in between all that you have to fasten the leaf catcher to the whole apparatus, which renders the tractor totally incapable of fitting into the garage whatsoever. It's much too much to think about for one weekend.

Instead, why not ease ourselves into honoring labor by kicking back with a big juicy steak, some corn on the cob, and a cool beverage of your choice and take the "let's wait and see" attitude. Who knows, maybe we won't get any snow at all, and then our efforts won't be wasted.

Instead we can concentrate on putting our talents to a more useful purpose. Everyone knows that Labor Day was created so you could have a day away from your chosen profession to prepare your living room for the upcoming kick-off of the NFL season.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

SWALCO offers three more household waste collections

In order to more fully address the public demand for optional disposal outlets for assorted household chemical waste products, the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County (SWALCO) is hosting three additional one-day household chemical waste (HCW) collections through fall 1999. Four prior such collections were sponsored by the Agency at different sites around the county in May, June, July and August.

The accumulated bottles and cans of old latex and oil-based paint, wood stain, paint thinner, varnish, crusty driveway sealer, almost-empty spray bottles of weed killer and ant spray and milk jugs with used motor oil residents have stored in garages, sheds and basements are targeted by the one-day collections. "Hosting HCW collection events ensures that the amount of household chemicals going into our landfills is reduced," said Monica Duebbert, SWALCO public information coordinator. "This not only lessens the potential for future problems from leaking paint cans and similar items, but also gets these materials out of basements, garages, sheds and from under kitchen sinks." Residents, especially those who may be moving soon, should take advantage of the collection events to remove these problematic materials from the home.

The three fall 1999 HCW collection events will be held at the following locations on the dates noted from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Collection events are limited to Lake County residents only.

Sept. 18 at Metra station, 75 E. Route 45, Vernon Hills.

Oct. 2, Deerfield High School, 1959 N. Waukegan Rd., Deerfield.

Nov. 6, Zion-Benton High School, 3901 21st St., Zion.

The addition of these three one-day collections brings to 12 the number of special collections SWALCO has offered citizens in the past year. The Agency also funded four HCW collections in Lake County last fall and co-sponsored one in Glencoe. In previous years, similar Lake County collections were sponsored by SWALCO, but funding for those events had been provided by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. However, little state funding has been offered in the past year.

The following materials may be brought to the collection events:

Old paint, paint remover, insecticides, weed killer, used motor oil, antifreeze, solvents, old gasoline, furniture stripper, household cleaners, hobby chemicals, fungicides, pool chemicals, aerosol products, metal polishes.

SPORTS

Lakeland Newspapers / A9

It's in the blood!

Many great coaches on all levels have passed through Lake County over the years.

Well, there's one who has been a fixture in the county for over 30 years and was justly acknowledged for his services and contributions to area youths.

We are, of course, referring to Antioch's Denny Porter, who beat out over 2,000 candidates in being awarded National Youth Coach of The Year.

"Apparently, I'm doing something right," said Porter. "But I tend not to get caught up in the hype surrounding such a high honor. Just to be nominated is very appreciated. It's a reflection of all of the parents, coaches, great kids, and the community as a whole that I've had the pleasure of working with through the years—they are why this is possible."

Porter developed and has orchestrated organized youth basketball and football leagues for over 30 years, leagues that consist of both boys and girls on the fifth through ninth grade levels.

Most recently, Porter, a former Motorola employee and current substitute teacher in Lake Villa, guided his eighth-grade boys basketball team, the Lakeland Lakers, to the regional, state, and North American basketball titles.

The Lakers then capped off a 48-14 summer by taking fourth in The International Classic last month, held at Michigan State University.

Porter, 52, also won the award in 1984, then sponsored by Gatorade. He has two mind-boggling records on his resume, the first a 121-game winning streak attained while living in Buffalo Grove and coaching the Bills youth football team. The second is still ongoing, as the Antioch lightweight (7th and 8th grades) Vikings football team has claimed 64 consecutive victims.

"He's really dedicated his life to helping youths and the community," said Tom Hocik, in his first year assisting Porter with the Vikings.

"He's got such a great mind for sports, and that simply comes from being around them for so long. The kids sense they're in the presence of winner and pick up on his knowledge, which in turn helps build confidence."

Hocik's son Taylor, an eighth-grader and reigning state wrestling champion, plays for the Vikings. Furthermore, the Vikings are a unique team because in addition to Taylor, teammates Frank Angoli and Jeff Canella are also state champions in wrestling.

While Porter may be a humble kind of guy, the intensity when the kids hit the court, or field, is a given.

"He expects excellence," added (Tom) Hocik. "But his teams have a lot of fun while learning and playing, and that's important."

Speaking of having fun, a good time was had by all when a nice crowd congregated at the Porter household for a summer-ending picnic commemorating the success of the Lakers.

However, it's time for football and Porter will be back on the sidelines guiding his youth football teams where success again shouldn't be a concern.

Sequoits stumble in OT thriller, 20-17

Wapon honored during halftime

Sports Editor

All of the signs were and are there, with one exception—getting the 'W.'

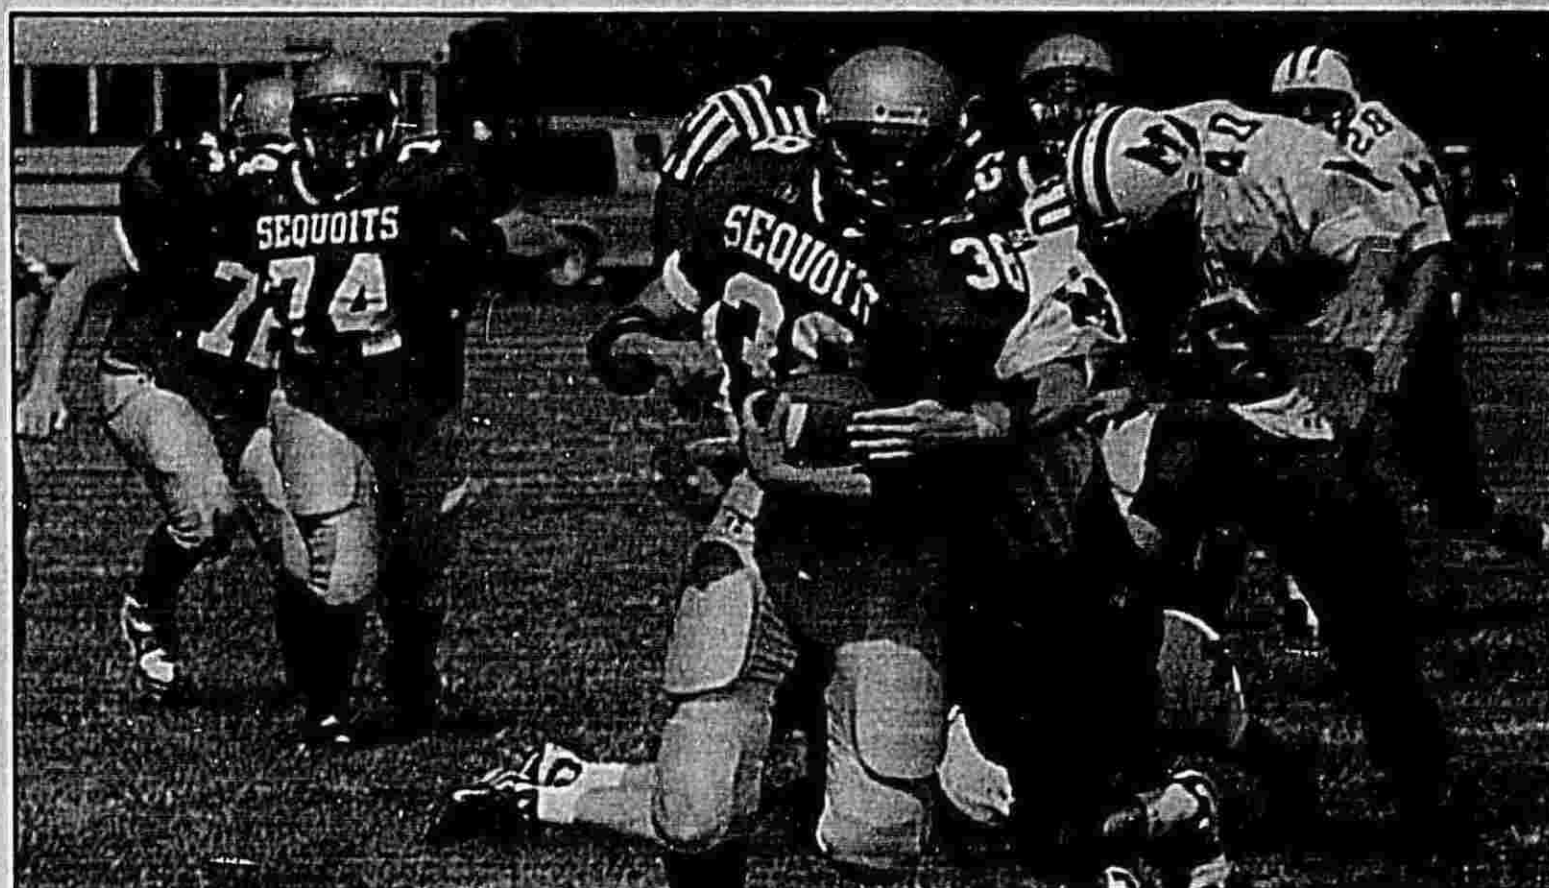

The Sequoits had a victory snatched from its grasp last Saturday literally at the hands of Wisconsin power Mukwonago, 20-17 in an overtime classic.

Tied at 17-17, both teams headed to overtime where each had four chances to score. Antioch won the coin toss and after three plays, Eric White wound up kicking a 21-yard field goal, which then essentially left the game in the hands of the defense.

A motion penalty on Mukwonago put them into a first and 15 situation. From there, Antioch's 'D' shut down the Indians on two consecutive running plays. Mukwonago then had a third and goal from the nine yard line when running back Daryn Ploekeln took a pitch around the right side and in for the game-winning score. The Antioch faithful, which seemed assured of a victory based on the previous 48 minutes, sat in disbelief.

"I think the momentum really shifted early in the third quarter," said Sequoit head coach Del Pechauer. "They (Mukwonago) had two really long drives in the second half and that seemed to knock the wind out of our defense. Mukwonago is a very disciplined team."

But so appears to be the Sequoits, who had the passing game in gear. Senior quarterback Don Lackey tossed for 220 yards on 15-for-33 passing. He also accounted for the Sequoits opening touchdown of the game, a one-yard scamper in the first quarter as Antioch staked to a 7-0 advantage.

The Sequoits added a second score when senior running back Pat Swanson took a fullback dive 28 yards for a score and 14-0 halftime lead for the hosts.

A packed house in Antioch was treated to a dose of solid first-half play on both sides of the ball as Antioch looked poised in cruising to a victory.

Defensively, the Sequoits were all over the field. Case in point was senior defensive back Jim Richardson, who is also one of the top re-cievers in the area.

For the game, Richardson, at 6'3, 185, collected an interception and probably one of the hardest sticks on a Mukwonago players off of a punt return. On offense, he finished with two catches for 33 yards.

Unfortunately though for ACHS, Richardson suffered a slight sprain to his knee and will probably miss this week's game at Fenton.

Senior defensive back/running back Adam Durham (6'2, 190) and senior defensive lineman Ron Nissen (6'0, 184) also played well defensively, each recovering fumbles.

A terrific halftime by the award-winning ACHS dance team, coupled with longtime coach Steve Wapon's induction into the ACHS Hall of Fame made for an all-around festive day on the North Suburban campus.

Wapon, who recently began his 50th different season as a coach, has been at Antioch for 30 years.

He was presented with a plaque commemorating the honor.

"It's a tremendous honor," said Wapon. "ACHS has been here a long time and just to be considered as one of the people to fit in and help the program makes this a very special day. I greatly appreciate the opportunity and thank the school and all of the community for their support over the years."

Sequoit golfers are off to a roaring start

Sports Editor

If last week was any indication, chances are the Antioch faithful could see both the girls and boys golf teams making state appearances come October.

The boys team began the season on a high note after finishing second in the Lake County Invitational, held at Bonnie Brook GC in Waukegan.

"That was the highest we've finished in that tournament," said head coach Jeff Moxley, who has been at ACHS for 18 years and is filling in for Roger Alm, who is on a leave of absence this season. "We've gotten off to a outstanding start. The kids are really excited. They put in a lot of hard work over the summer and it's paying off early."

Antioch fired a four-man total of 306, 11 shots behind champion Lake Forest (295).

Sophomore Andrew Kinney, the Sequoits number two player, finished tied for second after carding a two-over par 74.

Senior John Logan, the Sequoits top player and leader, was right behind in seventh place after carding a 75.

Rounding out the Antioch scoring was no. 3 player, junior Tom Davis, who fired a 77, good for 12th place, and no. 4 golfer, senior Christian Litke (80). Medals were handed out to the top 15.

Sophomore Shawn Schuler showed promise and depth to the Sequoit roster after coming in with an 86.

"For the inclement weather, those were some pretty good scores," added Moxley.

Tuesday afternoon when the Sequoits downed Richmond-Burton in dual meet action, 160-174. Senior Tim Jankowski (39), juniors Mike Baba and Kyle Pruski (40), and senior Nate Zeller (41) figured into the scoring.

Please see GOLF / A10

On Wednesday, Antioch recorded another dual victory, this time to the tune of 166-175 over host Harvard at Plum Tree National. Baba led the way with a 39, followed by Jankowski and Pruski (42), and senior transfer (from Round Lake) Steve Lemmerman (43).

"Plum Tree is a young and beautiful course," noted Moxley. "It's fairly open but you can still get into plenty of trouble." Zeller and junior Kyle McClanahan each finished with 43 and 47, respectively.

It gets better as ACHS then claimed first place in the eight-team 2nd Annual McHenry Invitational last Saturday.

'Salute to Labor' highlights busy racing weekend

The Salute to Labor Festival of Racing comes to Premier Racing Production's Wilmot Speedway Saturday, Sept. 4.

Featuring the return of the Star Trac 410 Outlaw Winged Sprint Cars, headed by point leader Tommy Sexton of Antioch, a field of 35-40 sprint cars are expected as the season heads into its final month. The IMCA modifieds, lead by Lake Villa's Rob Olson, are also on the program.

The evening's off-track activities include continuation of the food drive sponsored by Wilmot Speedway and The Original Outlet Mall of Kenosha for the Shalom Interfaith Food Bank based in Kenosha. Fans, competitors and staff are encouraged to bring non-perishable food items to the speedway ticket office. The drive continues through Sept. 11.

In The 'After The Fair' Championships sanctioned by the J&L Oil/United Expresslines Interstates Racing Association (IRA) Outlaw Sprint Car Series on Aug. 28, IRA point leader Donny Goeden of Kewaskum closed in on his first-ever championship with a victory in the 25-lap "A" main event.

Todd Daun of Pleasant Prairie, former Wilmot rookie of the year, and Kurt Winker of Kenosha battled in the closing laps with Daun edging Winker by less than half car length for runner-up honors. Lake Villa's Raymond Hensley came on strong, moving from 12th starting spot in the 20-car field, to finish fourth.

Other area finishers included Johnsbury's Dave Moulis, who won the "B" main to gain a feature spot, seventh; Gurnee's Tony Engels eighth, and, Dave Hanna of Beach Park finished ninth. Travis Whitney of Minnesota, last year's IRA rookie of the year, was bidding for a clean sweep before being relegated to 20th starting spot when mechanical problems delayed his feature start. Whitney, driving for past Wilmot champion Mike Frost of Zion, wound up 10th.

Meanwhile, Fox Lake's Jim Moulis was 12th; Gurnee's Fred Ebler 15th; Twin Lake's Todd Lehr, after flipping in time trials, came back to finish 16th; Lake Villa's John Tierney, who won the fourth qualifying heat, was 17th; and, Beach Park's Joe Kristan earned 19th place.

The "C" main was won by Kenosha's Jeff Ferkin, with heat wins going to Whitney, Hanna, Goeden and Tierney. The last chance qualifier was won by Round Lake Beach's Bruce Oldenburg. Whitney posted a fast time with a :13.603 secs. for one lap, averaging 88.128 mph in the 67-car field, which included competitors from Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota.

The IRA travels to Grant County Speedway in Lancaster, Wis. Saturday, Sept. 4, then to Cresco, Iowa Speedway Sunday, Sept. 5.

Genoa City's John Janssen claimed victory in the super stock feature while point leader Zac Deeringer of Wonder Lake finished second. McHenry's Adam Regnier, who won the dash, was third; Crystal Lake's Scott Eggebrecht fourth; and, Antioch's John Maki, Dan Huber and Doug Peterson placed fifth, seventh and 10th, respectively. Wonder Lake's Todd Peterson and Island Lake's Mike Kooi each won semi-features.

Kenosha's Chad Ross took the sport truck main event checkered flag. Woodstock's Chad Phillips, who won the heat race, and James Olson, finished second and fifth, respectively. Libertyville's Curt Matson sixth; Wadsworth's Vincent Merry seventh; Island Lake's Ryan Hughes ninth, and Salem's Tiny Yeverg 10th.

Due to rain outs, Lake Geneva Raceway plans to hold stadium motocross at 8 p.m. the next four Friday's. This Saturday, Lake Geneva hosts super late models, super stocks, Wisconsin Allison Legacy Series and sport trucks beginning at 7:30 p.m.

A second day of racing at Lake Geneva will be Monday, Sept. 6 featuring the "Organ Donor" 301 Midwest Enduro Stock Car Series event, starting at 1 p.m. A celebrity media challenge is planned for 12:30 p.m. Persons who have signed up as organ donors, or who sign up at the track, receive a discounted grandstand admission. Grandstands will open at 11 a.m.

Hales Corners Speedway in Franklin, Wis. hosts racing Friday through Monday. The Friday program features Badger midjets and Midwest Sprint Association 360 sprints. Saturday's program features UMP late models, sportsman, modifieds and Hales Whales. Friday and Saturday racing is at 7:30 p.m., while Monday's program, which features a demolition derby, is slated to begin at 1 p.m.

We'd also like to thank Frank Moser of Antioch and Jay Sachs of Waukegan for attending Wilmot Speedway race car show at Racer Dogs in Gurnee Aug. 25. Plans are to start the monthly shows again next May.

Watch for Wilmot Speedway's entry in the Zion Jubilee Days parade this Labor Day weekend.

GOLF: Fast start for ACHS golf

The scoring was a little different in that five scores counted towards the team total, versus the standard top four. Antioch's 376 total bettered the old record (381) by five strokes.

"I think we would have won it with four, but adding that fifth score, it got a little more interesting," said Moxley.

Pacing Antioch was Kinney in fifth place after firing a one-over 72; Baba sixth (73); Logan ninth (74); Davis (77); and, Schuler (80). Litke just missed in on the team total and a medal, awarded to the top 10, following a respectable 83.

The Sequoits then downed Grant

Monday afternoon 168-170. Kinney led the hosts with a 41s, Schuler and Jankowski (42), and Logan, Davis, and Zeller came in with 43s.

"The team score was a little high for our liking, but nonetheless, scores have been very consistent," added Moxley.

And how about those Lady Sequoits, who broke broke a school record after firing a nine-hole total 175 last Thursday in its victory over Deerfield (187) and Hersey (213) at Spring Valley in Salem, the Sequoits home turf.

Senior Sara Groh rebounded with a 42 after carding a 50 earlier in the week. Backing her was Carrie Cybul (44), Danielle Nielsen (44), and Britany Cable (45).

"It was nice to see Sara come back," said head coach Steve Wapon. "Our scores have been very consistent but we still there's still room for improvement, especially on the greens."

Mary Stringer posted a 52 and Melissa Mitchell a 55 for the Sequoits. Antioch then recorded a 194-204 victory over Barrington Monday afternoon. Groh was the medalist with a 43, followed by Nielsen and Cybul (50).

"The scores were still a little high," added Wapon. "But we're heading in the right direction. Getting a victory over a nice program like Barrington is always welcome. Plus, we've never beaten them in a dual meet. But we still have a long way to go."

The Lady Sequoits, who are off to a fast 5-1 start in dual meets, compete in the Waukegan Tournament this Saturday at Bonnie Brook GC.

According to one of the events coordinators, Vera Tierney of Lindenhurst, 45 participants competed and monies raised were nearly double compared to last year.

The outing featured two closest to the pin winners, Bob Schmerbach of Lindenhurst captured the mens division and won a Nancy Lopez pitching wedge, donated by Rally For A Cure. On the womens side, Ellen Lanz of Deerfield took the honors and won a golf bag cover.

Special thanks from the Lindenhurst Womens Golf League go out to its members, participants, and sponsors for assisting in running a smooth event.

Furthermore, a special thanks are in order for the following $50 sponsors; Anchor Bank, Learning Resources, Century 21 Leech & Associates, Grand National Bank, Tierney Signs, Inc., Northfield Block, American Marketing, Dr. LeRose, and Ul-

Blue Jacket Classic set for Sept. 11

Sports Editor

Here's the opportunity to honor and pay tribute to some of the men and women who serve our country.

On Saturday, September 11, The Fifth Annual 'Blue Jacket' Day will commence in North Chicago.

A historical military display will be on hand at the high school from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. "The display will reflect the integral role african-americans have played in serving the country," said North Chicago High School Athletic Director Michael Durrah. "Overall, it's a very special and exciting day demonstrating the marriage between the city and the Navy."

Also included in the festivities will be a parade beginning at 12 noon. It will start in the high school gym and proceed through the city of North Chicago before culminating back at the high school.

And don't forget about football, which will be mixed throughout the days activities.

The freshman game will kickoff at 9 a.m., followed by the sophomores at 11, and, of course, the varsity game slated to kickoff at 1 p.m.

The game will feature North Chicago, of course, as they play host to the Antioch Sequoits in an early-season North Suburban tilt.

At halftime for the varsity game, the R.O.T.C. band will perform along with the drill team.

Sequoits soccer off to 1-0-1 start

Sports Editor

The Sequoit varsity boys soccer team is off to a quick 1-0-1 start to the 1999 campaign. Last Friday, ACHS opened the season with a 3-0 shutout over Wheeling. Senior forward Matt Micela scored two goals and dished out one assist, while sophomore midfielder Michael Wheeler added one goal. Assists went to junior forward Kieran Moran, junior midfielder Matt Peterson, and senior forward Adam Schuster.

Goalies, senior Nick Placko and junior Jason Myers, combined for the shutout.

Moran assisted Micela on Antioch's first goal eight minutes into the game.

The Sequoits then played to a hard-fought 0-0 tie with Oak Park in the first round of the Maine East Tournament.

"The defense played a great game in holding them (Oak Park) to one shot on goal in the second half," said Sequoit head coach Charlie Trout. "Mike Outinen, Tim Clutter, Jason Love, and Steve Colletti all played a great game in front of our goalie (Nick Placko)."

Antioch outshot Oak Park 9-4 for the contest.

SPORTS DIGEST

Baseball will be coming to The College of Lake County this fall. CLC is organizing a fall baseball league for players not competing in a fall sport. Players can sign up individually or as a team. Six teams will be formed to compete from Sept. 7 through Oct. 10.

Games will be at 4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday at the CLC baseball field and the charge will be $45.

Players should contact Gene Hanson 543-2046 or stop by the Physical Education Center (Building 7) for registration forms. Only 84 players will be able to play and players should register immediately.

Antioch youth baseball

There are openings on the Antioch youth baseball board. The next meeting will be on Wednesday, Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Antioch Upper Grade School in the library.

Hockey League Registration

And finally, The Lake County Atoms will be holding registration for their house level hockey league. The program is for boys and girls ages 5-13 that have little or no hockey experience or those that don't want to participate in a travel program.

Registration and a Free Skate will take place on Saturday, Sept. 11 from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Lake County Ice Sports and Fitness Center, which is located at 351 Oakwood Ave. in Waukegan. Come out and meet the coaches. Questions should be directed to the rink at (847) 336-7444.

Twilight time at Thunderhawk

Sunset is a sure bet for visiting the Lake County Forest Preserves' new highly acclaimed ThunderHawk Golf Club, an 18-hole public championship course near Beach Park and Zion, designed by legendary golf course architect Robert Trent Jones Jr.

To celebrate a successful inaugural season and to introduce more area golfers to ThunderHawk, a sunset rate for public play after 5 p.m. is being offered on weekdays and weekends. The sunset rate is designed to encourage additional play after 5 p.m., a time when play is generally slower and daylight hours limit the ability to play a complete 18-hole round of golf.

On Mondays through Thursdays after 5 p.m. on weekends (Friday to Sunday) are $35 for Lake County residents and $55 for non-residents.

To take advantage of the sunset rates or for more information about ThunderHawk Golf Club, call 872-HAWK (4295).

CLC names new coaches

Rob Sandler will take over the coaching duties for the mens basketball team beginning this winter.

With his experience and background, the future of men's basketball hopefully will again be a competitive program. The program has been through some hard times the last few years but Coach Sandler will bring some stability and enthusiasm back to the program. He is familiar with the area and realizes the Lake County area high schools are loaded with outstanding high school coaches and talented basketball players. Coach Sandler is editor and publisher of the Chicago Suburban Basketball Report, which evaluates high school basketball players for colleges.

Coach Sandler has been an assistant at Arizona and Northwestern and has also worked numerous basketball camps. Sandler has proven to be successful at evaluating talent; he has a detailed knowledge of the game; and he has excellent organizational and people skills.

Many of the area coaches are familiar with Sandler as he has already developed a strong rapport with them. His first goal is to recruit local players and then begin to build a winning tradition again at The College of Lake County.

Turning to the mat, Curt Onstad has been hired as the new CLC wrestling coach. Coach Onstad is a graduate of Grayslake High School and former CLC All-American. After leaving CLC, Onstad joined the Marines, where he continued his wrestling career. He placed first in the University Nationals and fifth in the Greco Roman Nationals.

Onstad was the head coach for the Camp Pendleton team and furthermore, represented the United States wrestling team in Sweden, Finland, Germany and Austria.

Anyone interested in wrestling should contact Coach Onstad at 543-2046. The season will officially begin Jan. 1, but the team will be working out during the fall semester.

Mastering the arts

Former police officer John Roberts opens Martial Arts Academy in Round Lake Heights

ANGELA D. SYKORA
Staff Reporter

John Roberts knows martial arts. It's not just a job for this former Chicago police officer; it's a lifelong passion.

Master Roberts, as his students know him, looks like the kind of guy you wouldn't dare mess with. And while that's true, he's really just a pussycat in disguise. He has a seventh degree black belt in Taekwondo and Hapkido, and an amazing way with children.

"Children are natural-born competitors. Martial arts helps make kids well-rounded and balanced," said Roberts.

At his Traditional Martial Arts Academy in Round Lake Heights, Roberts teaches the techniques and philosophies of Taekwondo and Hapkido to adults and children alike.

Taekwondo is the Korean version of Karate. It's a 3,000-year-old art that means "the way of the foot and the fist." Hapkido involves joint locking and throwing, learning how to fall properly and defeat the opponent by coordination of mind and body.

Roberts explains that martial arts is not about "kicking butt." It's about self-control, self-confidence and integrity.

"They're learning so much more than moves," said Roberts of his students.

Using the techniques of martial arts for self-defense is a last resort for when you've reached a point where "you can't go any further." Those who want to learn Taekwondo to be able to hurt someone just aren't getting it.

"In order to give pain, you have to understand what pain is. It's better to heal than hurt. When people fight, there's something wrong," he said.

"If you can get your opponent to leave you alone, that's best."

The exercise benefits of martial arts are undeniable because the techniques work so many muscles and body parts. Roberts' wife Lauren credits her husband with teaching Tae-Bo long before Billy Blanks turned it into the next big fitness craze.

As a police officer and control tactics instructor for the Chicago Police Department, Roberts offered the combination of martial arts and aerobics to his recruits and other interested people. Little did he know how popular it would become.

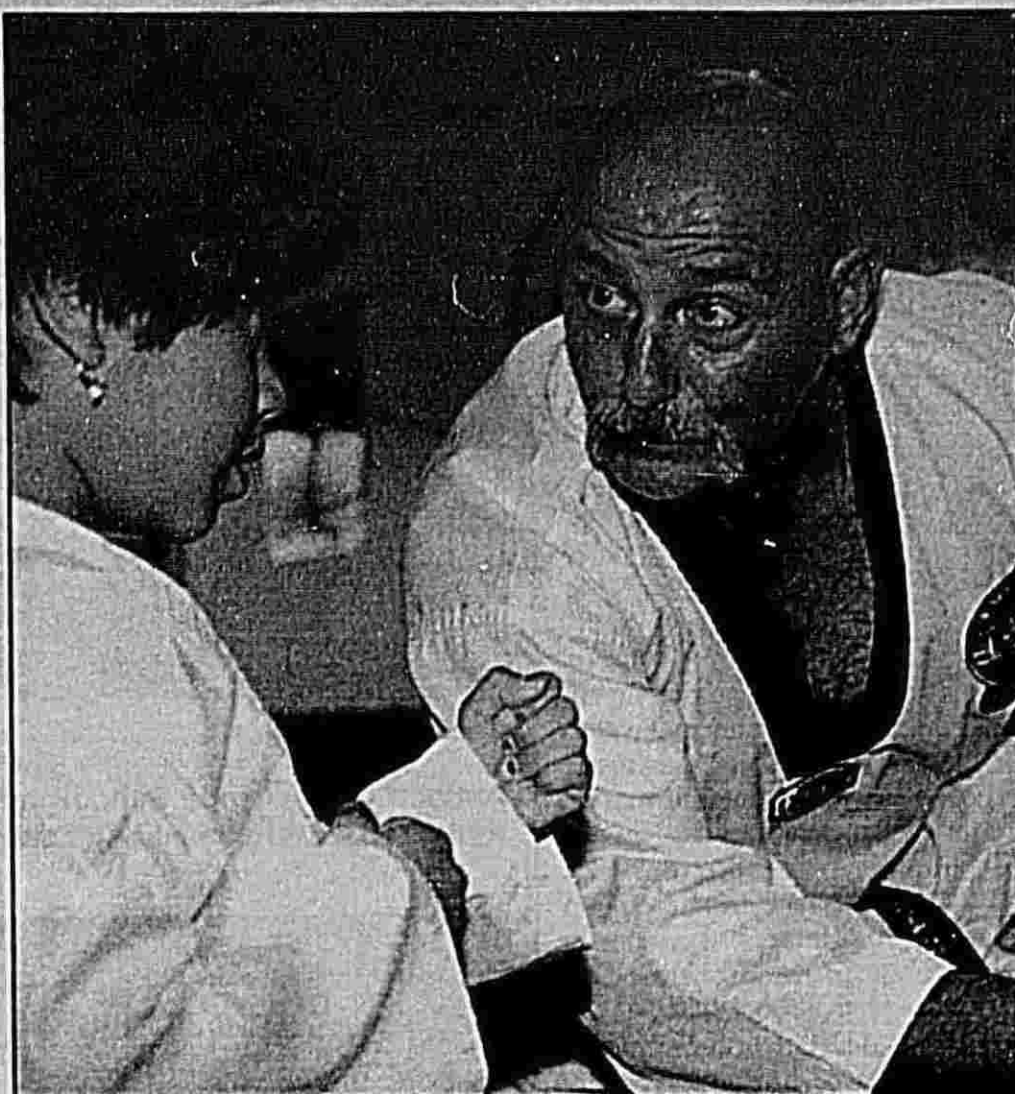

For Roberts, the fascination with martial arts began as a child at the YMCA. He's been a martial arts expert for 33 years and is still going strong. In addition to running his own business, Roberts, a member of the Black Belt Hall of Fame in Ohio, finds time to serve as a part-time officer for the Round Lake Heights Police Department and security officer for the school district.

He retired from the Chicago force in 1996 after 28 years. Now, he's exactly where he wants to be, sharing his knowledge and love of martial arts with others.

"If you can do these techniques, you can do anything, accomplish anything."

The Traditional Martial Arts Academy has Taekwondo and Hapkido classes for all ages. The cost is $60 a month. The Academy offers an introductory price of $60 for the first two months. Several classes are scheduled every weeknight and there is no limit to how many classes one may attend. Students at the Academy can also participate in tournaments and earn belts up to the sixth level.

Two additional program are in the works. Roberts is hoping to add a "kickercise" class that combines martial arts and aerobics, and a self-defense course on the weekend.

Round Lake School District 116 is considering using Roberts' Taekwondo class to fulfill the physical education requirement of A.C.E.S. (Alternative and Continuing Education Services) students.

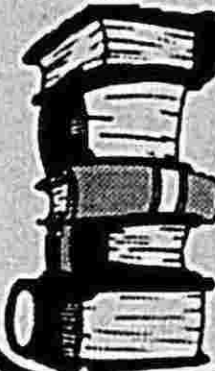

The Traditional Martial Arts Academy is located at 816 Rollins Rd. in Round Lake Heights. For more information, contact Roberts at 546-9698.

This organization provides several Boating Classes to the public each year in the spring and fall. The instruction is free and the cost for class materials is $15.

The Boat Smart class is five sessions including the topics of seamanship, navigation rules, equipment, adverse conditions and personal watercraft. The Boating Course is eight sessions that includes more information on piloting. The classes are given in several communities including Grayslake, Mundelein, Libertyville and Zion and are opened to all interested persons.

A Boating Course is scheduled for Libertyville High School, 708 W. Park Ave., Libertyville, beginning Wednesday, Sept. 29 and finishing Nov. 17. Classes are held weekly from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Contact Libertyville High School evening division to register (367-3117).

A Boat Smart class will be held at the North Point Marina, 701 N. Point Dr., Winthrop Harbor, beginning Thursday, Sept. 9 and ending Oct. 7. Birds of prey/Prairie animals highlight Nature Conservancy

Join friends and volunteers of The Nature Conservancy and Lake County Forest Preserves in a fall celebration of the natural heritage of Illinois at The Fifth Annual Nature Conservancy Festival on Sunday, Sept. 12 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Ryerson Conservation Area in Deerfield.

The Festival will feature guided nature walks for adults and families focusing on animal camouflage, insects, bats and native plants. Festival-goers will marvel at owls, falcons and hawks, presented by Spring Brook Nature Center. Animals of the prairie, wetland and woodlands will be presented to help those attending appreciate the importance of protecting and restoring their native habitats.

The Festival is a benefit for the Illinois Chapter of The Nature Conservancy, and this year's sponsors include: Tempel Farms, Sears Roebuck and Co., Goldman, Sachs and Company, Molex, Inc., Aquascape Designs and Sara Lee Corp. Last year's festival drew nearly 2,000 people and raised $200,000 for The Nature Conservancy, a private, non-profit conservation organization.

The Nature Conservancy Festival is open to the public at Ryerson Conservation Area, a featured site of Lake County Forest Preserves. The entrance is located on Riverwoods Road, 1 1/2 miles south of Half Day Road (Route 22) and two miles north of Deerfield Road, just west of the I-94 tollway. An optional donation to the Conservancy covers all nature walks and activities. Free parking is available, and the site is wheelchair accessible. For more information, call the Nature Conservancy at (312) 346-8166 ext. 68.

All-new Chevrolet Impala proves outstanding value

Large-car features and roominess at a mid-size base price: $19,265

Americans fell in love with Impala right from the start, when the first one was introduced in 1958. In the years that followed, Impala's combination of uplevel style and performance with Chevrolet value earned it the honor of being America's best-selling full-size name plate ever.

yet want the performance, agility and style of a mid-size sedan.

"This new Impala has the heart and soul of a great Chevrolet," said Impala Brand Manager Parkinson. "It has more room and amenities inside than you'd ever expect from a car in this price range. Yet it has such great handling and performance, it can re-awaken your love of driving."

Parkinson added that owning an Impala

Investigate the causes of tire wear problems

Tire wear patterns, such as scuffing, cupping and outside shoulder wear, often are an indication of a larger problem with a vehicle's chassis components, reports Al Lynch, manager of technical services for Moog Automotive.

"The cause of uneven tire wear can be as simple as incorrect air pressure," says Lynch, "but it also can be the result of loose parts such as struts mounts, ball joints or steering linkage. Weak or fatigued components like shock absorbers or coil springs also can cause undesirable tire wear. Once a particular tire wear pattern develops, it usually will remain there for the life of the tire. New tires also will begin to wear prematurely or unevenly if the cause of the problem is not corrected."

A common tire tread wear pattern is excessive wear on both the inside and outside edges of the tire (figure 1). This often is the result of air pressure below the manufacturer's recommendation, but also can be the result of high-speed cornering.

Other tire wear patterns, like cupping (figure 2), usually can be traced to loose or worn steering or suspension components. Cupped spots in the tread are caused by sudden, erratic movement of the tire. This can be caused by loose wheel bearings, ball joints, tie rods, weak shocks, suspension bottoming from weak springs, or a tire out of balance.

A diagonal tread wear pattern (figure 3) on rear tires usually is an indication of incorrect wheel alignment on the rear tires. If the toe setting is incorrect, the tire will try to travel in a direction different from the vehicle. This only happens for a moment and then the tire is forced back, resulting in a diagonal scuff wear pattern.

The rear suspension should be inspected before setting toe to ensure that the incorrect toe was not the result of loose or worn parts. When this condition occurs it also can affect the front wheel steering. Rear tire wear patterns on front-wheel-drive vehicles will vary depending on the tire type (all season or highway tread) and tire manufacturer.

Early detection is key

In order to achieve optimum tire performance, vehicle owners should follow a preventive maintenance schedule that includes frequent checks of air pressure and tire rotation every 6,000 to 7,500 miles or when recommended by the vehicle manufacturer.

"Every car owner should have a tire gauge to monitor tire pressure once a month or whenever they check their oil," says Lynch. "Tire pressure should conform with the manufacturer's recommendations - usually found inside the passenger door, door jamb or glove box - to accommodate the rated vehicle load."

Tire wear patterns often are easier to feel than to see, adds Lynch. "Before feeling the tire," he cautions, "make sure there are no sharp objects embedded in the rubber which could result in a cut or abrasion. Also make sure the engine is off, the transmission is in park and the parking brake is engaged."

"As you check each tire (figure 4), be sure to feel both side to side and up and down the tread. If you think you can feel a wear pattern or cupping in the tread, or you can see a tire wear pattern, you should take your vehicle to a qualified technician for a thorough inspection and wheel alignment check."

"It is very important that the vehicle be inspected thoroughly and needed repairs be completed prior to wheel alignment. Irregular tire wear patterns are the visible symptoms. Unless the cause is determined and corrected, it's possible the symptom will return. This can be both aggravating and expensive."

2000 Buick Lesabre sets out to take a great car and make it better

For the 2000 model year, Buick's Lesabre Brand Team set out to take a great car and make it better. And improvements are continuing in the all-new version of Lesabre, the best-selling U.S. full-size sedan for seven straight years.

The 2000 Lesabre was introduced as an early 2000 model. Mid-model year improvements began with the addition of StabiliTrak as an option (May 1999), making Lesabre the highest volume car on the market to offer this advanced integrated vehicle stability control system.

StabiliTrak helps the driver maintain control by electronically comparing what the driver wants the car to do with information from sensors indicating how the car is actually responding. If the car is in danger of sliding or skidding, StabiliTrak slows and stabilizes the car to help the driver maintain control. While StabiliTrak's benefits are most obvious when roads are wet, snowy or icy, the system also assists the driver during evasive or emergency maneuvers. The system functions at any speed and is always operational, requiring no user activation.

Lesabre Brand Manager Joseph J. Fitzsimmons Jr. said Buick's main challenge in creating an all-new Lesabre sedan for the 2000 model year was simply this: How do you improve one of the most successful automobiles on the market?

Lesabre's status as the best-selling U.S. full-size car for seven straight years was a strong indicator it was already providing a successful blend of attributes: roomy comfort, smooth power, quality, safety and security. Basically, Fitzsimmons said, customers saw the six-passenger Lesabre as an outstanding value.

So when it came time for a new model, product planners were determined to keep Lesabre's regular customers happy. At the same time, they wanted to widen its appeal. The result — the 2000 Lesabre — has numerous new features designed to strengthen Lesabre's position as a premium sedan for traditional American families.

"However, the main feature of the 2000

Lesabre is not its list of innovations and improvements — though it's an impressive list — but the overall package designed to continue the winning formula," said Fitzsimmons. "From the exterior styling that is elegant and pleasing — timeless rather than gimmicky — to the very popular 3800 Series II V-6 engine and the new stronger body structure, this Lesabre is designed to attract a large number of customers who want an upscale, roomy, comfortable and safe car with classic styling — and also a great value."

Pointing out the car's excellent reputation, he noted Lesabre for 1998 again won the prestigious "Family Car of the Year" award from Family Circle magazine and in recent years has received various quality (J.D. Power), safety (Kiplinger's magazine) and value (IntelliChoice, Strategic Vision, Car Guide, etc.) honors. In the summer of 1999, Lesabre was named a "Best Buy" by the Chicago Tribune and won the Good Housekeeping Institute Automotive Satisfaction Award. The Good Housekeeping award is based on customer satisfaction and recommendations for purchase and repurchase.

"We're proud of all of them, but we're most proud of the one that indicates we are truly meeting our customers' needs — and that's the best-seller award," Fitzsimmons said.

"We've sold more than one million Lesabres in the last eight years. Over that period, Lesabre has beaten all of our major competitors in retail sales — including Mercury Grand Marquis, Ford Crown Victoria, Chrysler Concorde, Dodge Intrepid, Toyota Avalon. That's a tremendous record of market success. "I think it's a combination of delivering the right product features and right touches of comfort and luxury at the right price. Lesabre gives you a feeling of being in control and being secure — basically it's a car that provides peace of mind."

For the 2000 model year, Fitzsimmons said, Buick set out to identify the features it would most like to improve by talking to customers. And then it improved them. As a result, the new model is stronger, quieter and more convenient and secure. It has, among a long list of improvements, side air bags for the driver and right front passenger, better ride and handling and more luggage capacity (and, on Limited, a pass-through between the trunk and rear seating for hauling long items).

There is more stowage in the passenger compartment, new inset door handles, larger gauges and larger outside rear-view mirrors that are hinged so they will fold if bumped.

From an engineering standpoint, Lesabre's major news is its more substantial body structure, the latest generation of the unusually strong architecture that earlier won praise in Riviera (1995) and Park Avenue (1997).

Fitzsimmons said customers will notice a smoother, quieter ride, a more satisfying sound when the doors close, and overall a more substantial "feel" created by the significant improvements in stiffness: 27 percent more resistance to bending and a 62 percent gain in torsional rigidity.

In addition, Lesabre's safety-cage construction combined with four air bags, balanced chassis design, energy absorbing surfaces and new anti-lock four-wheel disc more...brakes, with extra capacity for sure stopping, emphasize Lesabre's attention to safety — a key attribute for Lesabre buyers.

Among other new safety features on Lesabres are Catcher's Mitt seats — high-retention front seats with self-aligning head restraints. These features can enhance the seat system performance in rear impact collisions. In a rear impact, the new seat system is designed to absorb energy and "pocket" a properly positioned occupant's pelvis and lower back into the seat. The self-aligning head restraint, built into each front seat back, uses the rearward movement of the occupant's upper torso in an accident to rotate the head restraint closer to the occupant's head. This simple mechanical device can reduce head motion in certain rear impacts, and therefore reduce the potential for a "whiplash" injury.

IMPALA: Chevrolet's all-new 2000 Impala redefines the great American sedan means owning one of the most carefree cars on the market. "We wanted our customers to be enthusiastic about their new Impalas," said Parkinson. "To ensure that, we designed Impala to stay new longer, with quality and durability. We designed it to be safe and secure. And by using advanced technology throughout the car, we made daily operation as easy as possible."

Expressive Styling, Heritage Bloodlines

On of the challenges faced by the Impala development team was creating a modern sedan that was right for today's market, while capitalizing on the positive equity of the nameplate.

John Cafaro, Chevrolet Studio Design Chief, said his team took inspiration from the most popular Impala of all time: the 1965 Impala.

"The '65 Impala was so clean and uncluttered," said Cafaro. "I can still remember that Impala from when I was a kid, and it made a big impression on me. We wanted to communicate that same, clean, contemporary attitude in this new car."

The new Impala pays homage to its heritage with several styling cues, including round taillamps and sculpted rear quarter panels reminiscent of Impalas of the 1960s.

The manufacturer's suggested retail price (MSRP) of Chevrolet's all-new 2000 model year Impala sedans will start at $19,265 (including destination charge) for the base model and $22,925 for the uplevel Impala LS when they begin arriving at dealer showrooms.

"Impala returns as our division's flagship four-door," says Kurt Ritter, Chevrolet marketing general manager. "It's truly the right car, at the right time, for the right price. A dependable, high-quality sedan that delivers driving excellence from America's most trusted enduring brand."

Four decades and 13 million sales after its introduction, Impala remains the best-selling full-size automotive nameplate in history. That formula for success is the direct result of Chevy's commitment to staying in tune with the wants and needs of the car-buying public.

"As the first product to carry Chevrolet into the next millennium, the 2000 Impala offers a precise blend large-car six-passenger roominess with the agility of a mid-size sedan," says Don Parkinson, Impala brand manager. "Together they equal exceptional Chevrolet value."

Outside, the new Impala melds heritage-inspired styling cues (such as front grillework and round taillights) with a contemporary, streamlined profile. Design efficiency inside contributes to extraordinary roominess resulting in Impala being classified as a "large car" by the EPA.

Performance, efficiency and reliability expectations are all met with either the base 3400 V6 or available 3800 V6 engine.

Adding to Impala's value story are a host of standard features that are either not offered or are extra cost options on many of its competitors. They include largest-in-class four-wheel disc brakes; 16-inch tires and wheels; AM/FM Radio Data System stereo; daytime running lamps and automatic headlamps; three-point lap/shoulder belts and child seat tethers in all three rear seating positions. Among the list of available Impala features not offered on most competitive makes in its class are a driver's side-impact air bag and a tire inflation monitor system.

Save money on auto insurance

Want to know how your automobile's liability insurance really works? According to Alan Abler, an insurance agent for one of America's largest insurance companies, the average consumer pays a great deal of money each year for auto insurance and understands very little about it.

An insurance broker selling life, auto, homeowners and commercial insurance for the past 22 years, Abler has authored several articles and books on the subject of insurance in order to fill the need for consumer education with regard to insurance affairs. The many changes needed in the insurance industry, he feels, only can come about if the consumer becomes educated and demands change.

Abler's most recent book, "How to Save 25% Plus on Your Auto Insurance" (Heidi House LTD), is easy to read and understand, and explains everything from the different types of auto insurance coverage to major insurance resources to selecting an insurance company to settling claims. Included in the book are "Twelve Questions Insurance Buyers Never Ask But Should" as well as tips on how to prepare for changes in automobile insurance in the 21st century.

The book is available from Heidi House LTD for $19.95 (price includes a 30-day money-back guarantee). To order, call toll free (888) 511-6070 or fax (602) 780-1704. For additional information, visit the company's Web site at <http://www.freeyellow.com/members2/heldih> or visit the catalog listing at <http://www.amazon.com>, the online bookstore. To order by mail, write to Heidi House LTD, 18631 N. 19th Ave., Suite 128-222, Phoenix, Ariz. 85027.

THE INSURANCE COVERAGE you take out on your car is as important an investment as the car itself. Making educated choices when it comes to car insurance can be easy, with "How to Save 25% Plus on Your Auto Insurance" (Heidi House LTD), by Alan Abler.

Synthetics take a leading role in longer vehicle life

In this fast changing world of technology it comes as no surprise that petroleum chemists are enjoying a field day along with automotive engineers. Much of the development is occurring in the field of synthetic lubricants, growing at double-digit rates.

Forerunner in this field have been synthetic motor oils. Described as "designer" oils, because they have been created to fill specific engine requirements, they offer a far wider range of viscosity than even the finest quality mineral oil, exceeding the highest standards for passenger car motor oils. They're "slipperier," thereby providing superior wear resistance and resistance to oxidation. The film strength of synthetic oil also is better than that of mineral oil, affording even greater protection to metal components. While the down-side is the increased cost of synthetic oil, in many cases this is offset by longer engine life and improved fuel economy.

Chemistry to the Rescue

Automotive engineers stress that, under normal driving conditions, the greatest wear on an engine is at start-up. This is because, after turning off the engine, gravity begins draining oil down into the pan, potentially robbing critical parts of the full lubrication protection they need. After sitting several hours or longer, especially in cold weather, it can take from a few seconds to a few minutes, depending on the outside temperature, for the oil to become fully circulated in the engine. Until then, metal can grind against metal in an engine that's operating with less than full lubrication protection. This cold start condition causes the majority of engine wear.

Pioneering in this specialized field of automotive additives is Blue Coral-Slick 50, which now offers a complete line of synthetic products. Their Synchron Engine Treatment, with its unique and proprietary wear protection chemistry, uses specially prepared DuPont Teflon PTFE that actually changes the surface metallurgy of the engine's vital parts. The Cleveland, Ohio, company emphasizes that Slick 50 Synchron Engine Treatment is compatible with all types of motor oil, is safe for all gasoline and diesel engines and will not void manufacturers' warranties.

Each 15 ounce container of the "pour and drive" formula is accompanied by a 100,000 mile limited engine warranty. This added value never before has been offered with an engine treatment product. The warranty covers the 14 components most dependent upon adequate lubrication. It does not specify the need to change oil at the time it is added, but does require that the treatment be used before the engine has 50,000 miles. Other warranty requirements include oil and filter change at least every 4,000 miles. A companion product to the engine treatment is the company's Slick 50 Synchron automatic transmission treatment. "Domestic car manufacturers have established higher standards for transmission fluids used in 1998 and later models," says Rocco Pistillo, Senior Product Development Chemist. "Many vehicles are affected by heat, mechanical shear and viscosity loss, potentially causing premature wear, slippage and leaks. Our synthetic additive instantly upgrades the fluid to a semi-synthetic blend while restoring and maintaining the proper viscosity to meet the 1998 standards."

The company also markets two fuel additives, both of which improve performance for up to 5,000 miles and should be considered as preventive as well as corrective maintenance products. One, called Synchron Synthetic Fuel System Treatment, is a fully synthetic product which cleans the complete fuel system, including fuel injectors, valves and combustion chamber deposits. The result, says Slick 50, in addition to reducing harmful exhaust emissions caused by deposits on injectors, is restoration of lost power and improved fuel economy.

When Carbon is the Culprit

The other, Synchron Premium Octane Treatment, is a synthetic blend designed for engines with excessive build-up of carbon and other combustion chamber deposits. The first symptom of this condition often is poor performance and/or knocking or "pinging" under load. In more advanced cases the driver may notice "dieseling" or "run-on," where the engine continues to run for a few seconds after it's turned off. A temporary corrective measure may be switching to a premium, higher octane fuel to restore peak performance.

"We see this as a 'band-aid' solution," says Pistillo. "Our product doesn't treat the symptom, it attacks the problem by cleaning and treating those deposits that accumulate in the combustion chamber. It also provides an octane increase of 5 units and helps restore horsepower and acceleration to their original levels."

Another chemical advancement by Slick 50 is their Synchron Synthetic Auto Polish, which combines fluorine technology with a blend of polishing agents and reactive silicone resins. The company describes the result as "...chemically bonding to the paint surface, strengthening the paint while adding depth, paint color, clarity and a wet-look shine. It's designed for all automotive paint finishes."

For information on these and other Slick 50 Synchron products call 1-800-321-8577 or visit the company's web site at www.bluecoral.com.

Yes, you can wash your car in cold weather

Despite the serious damage that winter's frigid temperatures and road salt wreak on your car's finish, many drivers are fearful of washing their car in cold weather. If you avoid washing your car in winter because you think your car may freeze, the International Car Wash Association (ICA) has good news: you can successfully wash your car in cold weather.

In fact, washing your car during the winter is highly recommended, especially in geographic areas where a combination of road salt and melting snow can take a serious toll on your car's finish.

"Not washing your car during the winter months may result in damage to the painted surface of your car as the weather warms up," warns Mark Thorsby, ICA's executive director. "When temperatures rise above freezing, the moisture formed by melting snow and ice combines with road salt to damage the thin-painted surface of your car. Even newer cars with clear-coat finishes can't stand up to hard winter conditions. After the paint and clear coat begin to erode, the metal underneath will be exposed and rust will form."

This potential for damage will be minimized and even eliminated by following ICA's suggestions for cold-weather car washing. With these few simple precautions, a professional car wash in the winter is safe and effective in keeping your vehicle in top condition:

- At a full-service car wash, ask the attendant to thoroughly dry the area around the inside of the door and the trunk, as well as around the area where the power antenna is mounted to the car. (They usually will do this without being asked, but it does not hurt to remind them.) If you are at an exterior-only or self-service car wash, bring a few extra dry towels with you to perform these tasks yourself.

- To open frozen locks, purchase a lock de-freezing or de-icing product and keep it in your coat pocket or purse when leaving your vehicle. These products are available at most car washes and convenience stores.

- Periodically apply a good silicone spray to all-weather stripping during freezing weather, as water will not collect evenly on silicone-coated surfaces.

When an accident happens, are you prepared? Choosing a quality collision repair business

You're at a stoplight when you are suddenly jolted from behind. You get out of your car to realize that your vehicle has been damaged by the vehicle behind you. The damage doesn't appear to be extensive, but hidden damage can be difficult to detect. How do you know how much damage was done to your vehicle and if it's safe to drive?

Automobile accidents happen every day. When they do, most people are not prepared for them. Choosing a collision repair facility before you are faced with this situation however, can save you time and aggravation. But how do you start your search for a quality collision repair facility?

It's not as hard as you might think. Here are some basic questions to ask yourself when you enter a collision repair facility:

1. Is the facility clean and well lit?
2. Do they have modern equipment and current technical references?
3. Can you tour the facility?
4. Do you see signs, plaques or qualifications of technician training?

Signs of training are especially important. It shows that a business is keeping up with the technology of today's vehicles.

One company that is keeping businesses up-to-date with collision repair technology is I-CAR®, the Inter-Industry Conference on Auto Collision Repair. I-CAR is a not-for-profit organization that provides collision repair training to collision repair businesses, insurance companies, and other industry related professionals. I-CAR's mission is to protect the consumer by educating businesses on up-to-date collision repair methods.

To recognize businesses that are well-trained and up-to-date in collision repair technology, I-CAR created the Gold Class Professionals® program. When you see the I-CAR Gold Class Professionals sign you can be assured you have chosen a quality collision repair facility. This sign means the business has made a commitment to training their staff on up-to-date technology, and has the knowledge to properly find all of the damage and repair your collision damaged vehicle.

The I-CAR Gold Class Professionals logo is easy to spot in the yellow pages, and on signs located outside the business. Many insurance companies have listings of I-CAR Gold Class Professionals and are I-CAR Gold Class Professionals themselves. They understand the importance of being properly trained and directing their customers to quality repair facilities.

To find an I-CAR Gold Class Professional near you, or for a FREE information kit about the program, call 1-800-55-AUTO2. You can also search www.i-car.com for an I-CAR Gold Class Professional by region, state or province.

ABS should be as easy as A-B-C

How much do you know about anti-lock braking systems, commonly called ABS? This multiple choice quiz is a quick and simple way to check or improve your knowledge and understanding of the technology.

1. How many cars and light trucks in the U.S. today are equipped with 4-wheel and RWAL (rear wheel anti-lock) ABS systems?
 - A. 13 million
 - B. 27 million
 - C. 40 million
 - D. 57 million

2. ABS was first used on
 - A. airplanes.
 - B. trains.
 - C. heavy duty trucks.
 - D. passenger cars.

3. Drivers know their cars and trucks are equipped with ABS because
 - A. the dashboard tells them so.
 - B. the owner's manual for the vehicle tells them so.
 - C. they paid for it.
 - D. the brake pedal pulses back at them when they activate the ABS.
 - E. all of the above.

4. Four-wheel ABS systems pump the brakes
 - A. automatically.
 - B. as much as 18 times per second.
 - C. while drivers steer around hazards.
 - D. only on the wheels which are in danger of locking up.
 - E. all of the above.

5. The tollfree 800-number for more ABS information is
 - A. 800-ABS-WORKS.
 - B. 800-ABS-1234.
 - C. 800-123-4ABS.
 - D. 800-ABS-8958.
 - E. 800-ABS-STOPS

6. The ABS Education Alliance
 - A. urges drivers to practice using their ABS systems before they need to activate the technology in hard stopping situations.
 - B. provides an ABS curriculum and instructional videotapes for driver education instructors.
 - C. has an 800-number which answers questions about the ABS system and its use.

- D. has a website at www.abs-education.org.
- E. all of the above.

Answer key to ABS quiz:

1. D - There are more than 57 million passenger cars and light duty trucks equipped with ABS on American roads today. About one in every three passenger vehicles has either 4-wheel or rear wheel anti-lock braking systems, and virtually all of today's rental cars are equipped with ABS.

2. B - Anti-lock brakes were developed for use on trains in the 1930s, but the first popular use of them was for planes landing on aircraft carriers during World War II. The technology didn't "cross over" to automotive until the '70s. It wasn't until the mid-1980s that many cars sold in the United States were equipped with ABS systems. (In the early 1970s, Chrysler Corporation sold an ABS-equipped Plymouth for a short time.)

3. E - ABS-equipped vehicles have an icon which lights up when the vehicle's ignition is switched on, and owner's manuals contain information about anti-lock brakes. In many cars and light trucks, ABS comes as standard equipment, but it is also available as an optional item on some car and truck models. Because the system's feedback (through the brake pedal when ABS is activated) varies from car model to car model, it's important for drivers to practice using the system before they need to utilize it in a hard-braking situation.

4. E - With RWAL (rear wheel anti-lock) ABS systems, only the two rear wheels have sensors which detect imminent wheel lockup. The front wheels of RWAL-equipped light trucks (RWAL is found only on some light truck models) may still lock up and skid, so drivers in vehicles equipped with RWAL should use threshold braking techniques when they encounter an emergency stopping situation.

5. D - 800-ABS-8958 is the number to call for more information about ABS or to order a free brochure about the technology.

6. E - It's important to know, and be comfortable with, your vehicle's technology.

This chart will also help you calculate your monthly principal and interest payments for both fixed and adjustable rate loans at various interest rates over 15 and 30 year terms.

Start by finding the appropriate interest rate, then look across to the column indicating the desired term of the loan. That number is the interest rate factor. This is the dollar amount required each month to amortize $1,000 over the specified term. To calculate your principal and interest payment, multiply the interest rate factor by the total loan amount in 1,000's.

Here's an example: Interest rate: 7.1/4%
 Term: 30 years
 Factor per $1,000 6.82
 Total mortgage: $90,000
 $6.82 \times 90 = $613.80$

This is a calculation of principal and interest only. It does not include property taxes, insurance, association dues, or other charges.

MOVING TIPS

- Before moving from your present address, have the following services discontinued:
 - All utilities (gas, water, telephone, electric)
 - Garbage service
 - Local charge accounts
 - Lawn care
 - Cable TV
 - Newspaper deliveries
- Contact the utility companies in your new city about fees or deposits required. Remit these deposits with information about when and where you will want these services to begin.
- Send your forwarding address to your local post office. Send change of address cards to magazines, insurance companies, book clubs, stores and friends.
- Transfer your insurance policies so you'll be protected enroute and at your new home.
- Notify the principal of your children's school about your move. Ask for a letter covering your children's status at school.
- Get medical records of shots and eyeglass prescriptions. Ask your doctor and dentist to recommend someone in your new hometown.
- Transfer your bank account. Arrange for sufficient cash or traveler's checks to cover the cost of moving services and other expenses.
- Take your time choosing a moving company. Ask for suggestions from friends and relatives. Get estimates from several companies at least one month ahead.
- To save the moving company's packing charge, be sure to use clean strong containers and label their contents (no more than 50 lbs. per box). Books may be shipped parcel post to save money. Don't pack jewelry, documents or other valuables - carry them with you.
- Pets and plants need special care. The easiest way to ship a pet is to let a kennel do it for you. To fly on an airplane, your cat or dog will need a health certificate from your vet and it's a good idea to get some tranquilizers. For long cross-country car trips, pets must be fed and watered, have rest stops and be kept on a leash. Check hotels and motels in advance about rules on pets.
- Plants should be repotted in unbreakable plastic containers, pruned 2 weeks ahead and be pest-free (put in plastic bags for 8 hours in cool area with bug/pest strips or flea collar). Pack and cushion in cardboard, cover with moist paper towels and punch air holes in lid. Or just take cuttings in a plastic bag, wrapped in wet towels.
- Prepare your children emotionally for the move by reading them books about moving and showing them pictures of the new city and your new home. Give them a party to say goodbye to their friends. Give yourself a party, too, a month or two before you leave.

Brothers aim to break record during 13,000-mile canoe trip

By SANDY HARTOGH
Staff Reporter

Students and teachers at Prairie Crossing Charter School have formed a partnership with two Grayslake brothers, Jason and David Wallin, who pushed off Sept. 1 for a 13,000-mile canoe trip to Belem, Brazil.

"We're pioneers trying something new," said Kathy Johnston, principal of the new Grayslake school, when she explained the school's interest in and "sponsorship" of two Grayslake brothers, Jason and David Wallin.

Actually, the non-profit Liberty Prairie Foundation has made a $1000 donation "in the spirit of the school sponsoring the trip." According to Johnston, this donation will help the students feel that they have made an important contribution to the adventure, which they will be tracking as part of an experiential learning project.

The school—along with three other sponsors to date—provided equipment and amenities to help the daring duo as they set out to "live an authentic life" and break the world

"Why we are doing this is the hardest question for us," said 28-year-old Jason. "We know why, but it's hard to put into words so that everyone else can understand. We just want to learn how to be authentic to ourselves, and not fall into an everyday routine, not live a packaged life."

Everyday routines do not sound like the norm for Jason and 19-year-old David, who have just recently returned from stints outside the U.S. Jason was in Japan for the past year teaching English, while David and older sister Elly were in Germany working at a camp for military personnel as part of Singin' those kindergarten blues

She walked down the driveway
She got on the bus
I told her "You have fun"
She made a slight fuss
I thought to myself now,
"There's no one but me,
How am I gonna fill those hours each day from twelve to three?"
I've got the "My last kid's in Kindergarten" blues.

So I told myself...
I'll turn off the TV
I'll turn on the tunes
I'll break out the champagne and blow up balloons
I'll call up a girlfriend and talk for an hour And nobody will scream my name when I am in the shower

No one home to wait on, no Barbie to play,
No whinin' and fightin',
no one home to say,
"MOM, get me some breakfast,
MOM, I don't like that,
and by the way, Mom, hope you don't mind -
I just shaved the cat!"
I've got the "Thank heaven for Kindergarten!" blues

I'll clean up the house and,

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

It might even stay
All neat, clean and tidy...
At least half a day
I'll dance and I'll sing loud, no one will complain,
No Barney songs, I'm listenin'
to Jefferson Airplane

At last all the kids are all grown or in school
You got to admit, girl... this really is "COOL!"
For three precious hours, while they are away
I'm gonna do just what I want,
I'll have some time MY way.
I've got the "YESSS! My kid's in Kindergarten!" blues

I've put in my time, babe
I've paid all my dues
Those years changing diapers, and kissing boo boos,

And though I am glad for those wonderful times
Of sticky kisses, toothless grins and baby soft behinds,

I'm still gonna treasure
these three little hours,
I'll soak up the silence,
I'll smell all the flowers
And then at 3:30,
I'm gonna be ready For "What's for dinner, Mom? Oh no - don't tell me it's spaghetti!"
I've got the "At last my kid's in Kindergarten!" blues

There's only one thing wrong, with this little tale,
One fly in my soup bowl,
one unplanned detail
My baby's at school, but There's one major glitch
It's called a "job" from 9 to three.
And that's why life's a...bear

I've got the working mother Kindergarten blues!

JOURNEY: Aim for record

Camp Adventure, sponsored by the University of Northern Iowa.

Jason also worked in the fishing industry in Alaska in 1997, and had served in the National Guard during the Persian Gulf War.

These adventure seekers came up with the idea for the canoe trip while paddling on the Mississippi a couple of years ago. That small trek happened to be a 2,500-mile excursion that took the brothers about two months to complete. Their original goal of 2,700 miles was cut short by Hurricane Danny.

The pair believes their upcoming jaunt will take about 18 to 20 months to complete. Their route pretty much follows that of the Starkell father and son duo with the exception of their starting point. They plan to immerse their 18.5-foot canoe (upgraded from a 17-foot vessel), into the Missouri River near Helena, Mont. From there they'll head down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, follow the coastline along the Atlantic Ocean to South America, splash through the Rio Negro and Amazon River, and head into Belem, Brazil.

Along the way, the brothers plan to stop at small towns and villages to refurbish their food supplies and send messages to those anxiously waiting at home.

"We will be very dependent on the local people," explained Jason. "We will rely on them to show us what they eat, how to handle difficult waterways and where to get medical attention if needed."

"This will be a very difficult challenge for us," David pointed out, "because we like to keep to ourselves."

As far as the language barrier once they hit South America, David hopes to depend on his high school Spanish education. He said he will have plenty of time to brush up on his language skills during the four-month initiation on the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

Since the pair will not have technical communications ability of any kind, they are hoping to use public libraries and computer cafes to send e-mail to family, friends and the students at Prairie Crossing Charter School.

They will leave a "speculative" itinerary with their family, warning that weather conditions and other unforeseen delays would make it difficult for anyone to know exactly where they were at any given time. The Wallin's uncle is developing a website to assist in keeping track of their progress.

When asked what they would do if faced with a dilemma—such as the canoe tipping over in the ocean, or getting caught somewhere without an appropriate visa—the brothers responded that these possible occurrences are "part of the challenge of learning how to take care of things themselves."

Challenges that include a diet consisting mainly of rice, pasta and oatmeal, possible infections from bug bites, long periods of sun exposure, and the humdrum of each other's company during the 12-hour periods of paddling each day.

"We haven't been together for a long time," said David, referring to the past year's travels. "Maybe it's a good thing we weren't, now that we have to be together 24 hours a day for the next year!"

When asked where they will be at the stroke of midnight in the new millennium, David replied, "Probably at home."

Surprised? Join the club. Apparently the clock is running out, and the canoe duo are short on inoculations and visas. They plan to be in New Orleans near the holidays, so they will store their equipment at a friend's house, rent a car and drive home for two weeks to be with family, and get the rest of their papers in order before embarking on the more dangerous leg of their journey.

"We could have postponed the trip to get things in order, possibly including more sponsors," commented Jason, "but we didn't want to wait another year. We made the mistake of leaving for our Mississippi trip in July and hit hot, humid weather and hurricane season. If we leave later this year, we'll hit cold weather."

As to what they stand to lose on this expedition, besides the obvious, the brothers were quick to generate emotional references to family and friends.

"Losing my family and putting them at risk of maybe losing us is my biggest fear," claimed Jason. "I have been blessed with a wonderful family and my girlfriend (Vicki Roubal). I wonder if it's worth what we're doing."

"Losing contact with my close friends," David answered. "They're very excited, but also very worried. I'll also be losing the first years of college and dorm life. My friends will be ahead of me in the game of life, but I'll be 13,000 miles ahead of them."

Jason estimates the cost of the trip to be about $14,000—not including the return trip home,—which they hope will somehow get funded through airline sponsors. He and David already had accumulated $13,000 towards the trip. Mad River Canoe of Vermont has donated the canoe, which is made of kevlar—a high-quality synthetic cloth that is "five times stronger than steel," according to the Wallin brothers.

Top-of-the-line canoe paddles have been donated by Nashwaak Paddle Company, and the tents, sleeping bags and other camping accessories have been purchased with the donation from Liberty Prairie Foundation.

Sheraton Suites in Elk Grove Village sponsored a send-off celebration/press conference for the duo Aug. 27. The hotel provided overnight lodging for the brothers, family and friends before the send-off so that they could have some quality time together.

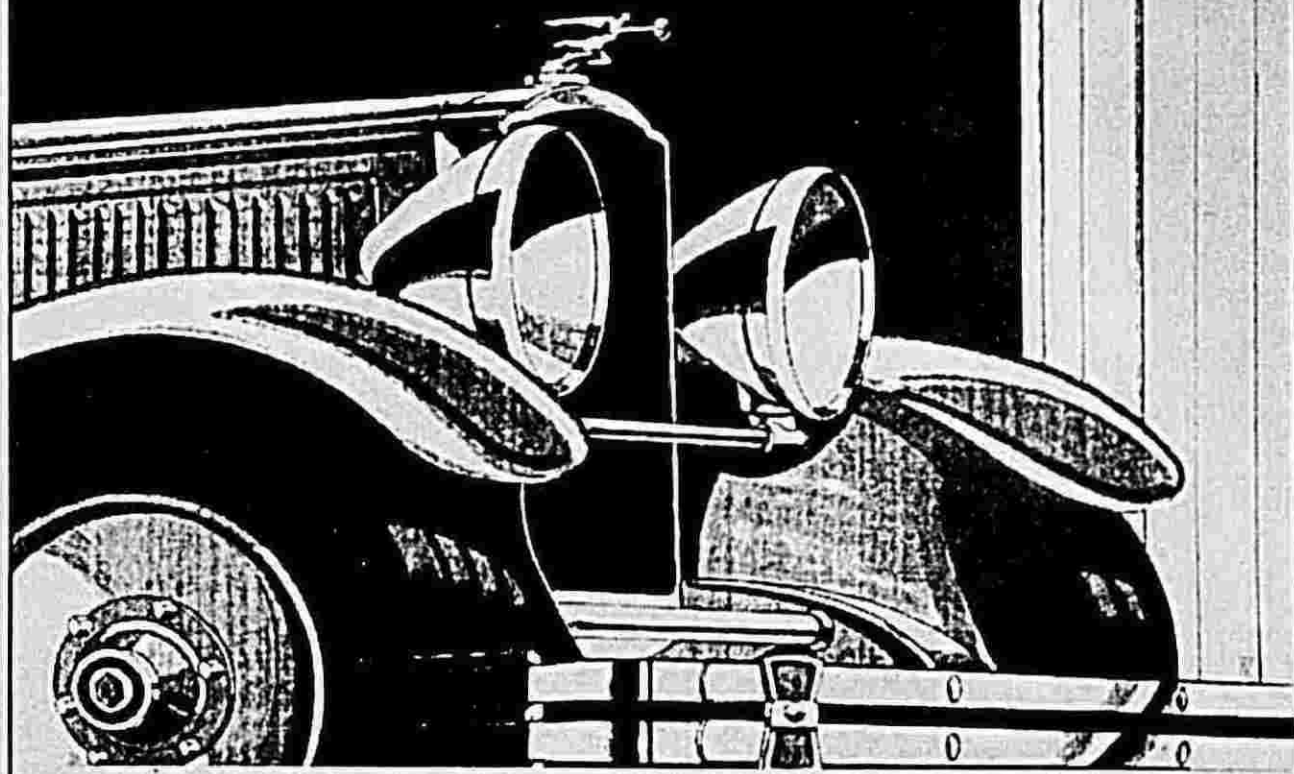

Silbar Public Relations, which represents the hotel, has also managed to get the canoe duo a live interview with WFLD-TV's Fox Thing in the Morning team.

What if Jason and David fail to complete their attempt to reach Brazil? They have alternate plans just in case "they're turned back at the South American border, or conditions get too bad to go on."

"We'll take the Panama Canal and go up the western seaboard into the inside passage of Alaska," said Jason. "We have sponsors counting on us, we have an obligation to these people to give a good effort. We know it can be done."

"We've read the books written by the Starkell's," David said. "We know what to expect, although they had an advantage being Canadian. The fact that we're Americans is not going to help in some South American areas."

Ballroom Dancing coming to Waukegan and Zion

Would you like to add some style and zest to your life? Do you need healthful and enjoyable exercise? Did you always have a secret desire to participate in the romance of ballroom dancing? Well, your opportunity to do this is on the way.

The United States Amateur Ballroom Dancers Association (USABDA) has announced that a Chapter for ballroom dancers has been organized in the Waukegan/Zion area.

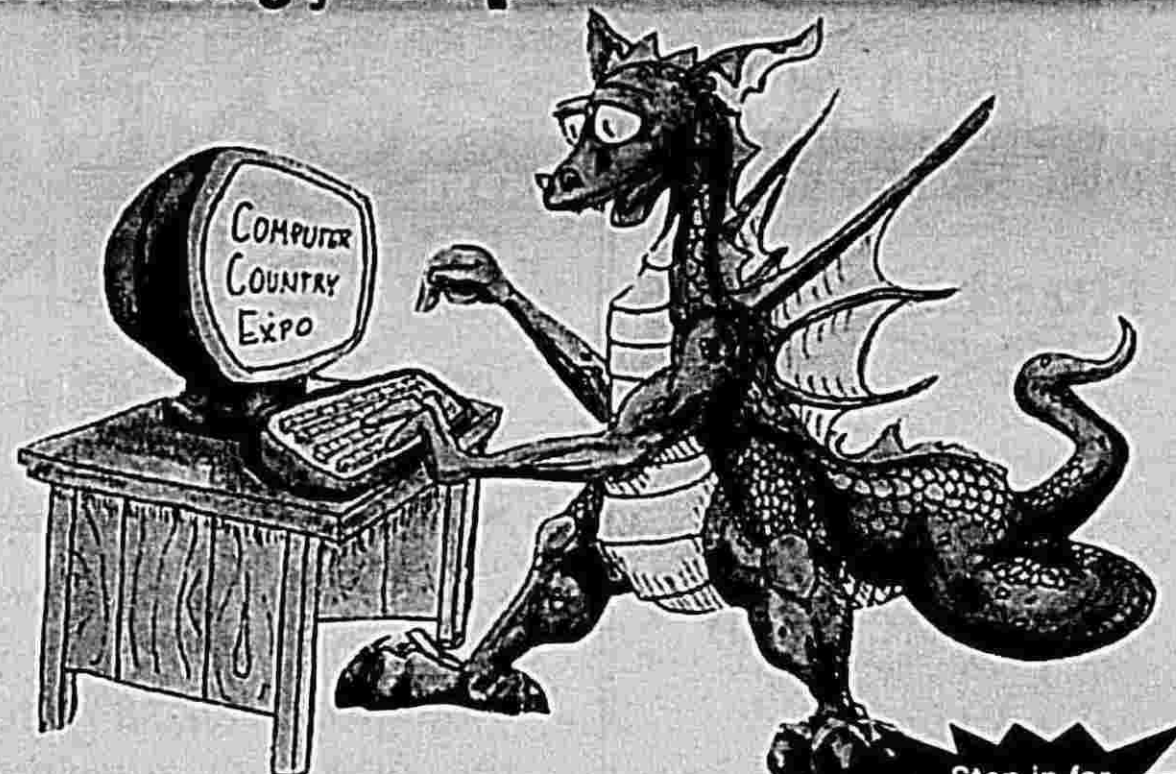

USABDA, a non-profit, volunteer organization, is the governing body for amateur ballroom dancing in the United States and has chapter all over the country. The basic purpose of chapters is to create opportunities for "affordable" ballroom dancing in the community and to educate the public regarding the physical, mental and social benefit of ballroom dancing.

The local Chapter will sponsor monthly dances for members and the general public. Typically, each dance will consist of a one-hour dance lesson, followed by three hours of general dancing as well as dance demonstrations. The program will include mixers and line dances. The Chapter also will promote ballroom dance training in local colleges and high schools, and will seek to increase the number of business establishments that offer ballroom dancing to the public. Membership will be open to singles as well as couples. A special welcome is extended to beginners and after the Chapter is operating, plans will be made to arrange special "low cost" dance lessons to help these new dancers get started.

Condell Distance Classic Offers Local Competitors and Families a Fun Event

Although the Condell Distance Classic draws runners who are very intent on the competitive aspect of their sport, the popular local event, now in its twenty-third year, proves to be a very special activity for area families. Race officials anticipate a large number of families to turn out for the event set for Sunday, September 19 at the Condell Day Center for Intergenerational Care, 700 Garfield Ave., Libertyville.

Race Director Donna Zradicka said that race officials see many of the same families returning year after year. "Most families register for the Lakeland Publishers One Mile or the Centre Club 5K Run/Walk. We have seen some competitors start out in the One Mile, and as they get older, move into the other races. Many of them become old friends. It's fun to see the baby that was in the stroller a few years ago, ready to walk with the rest of the family in the One Mile," she noted.

The Distance Classic, sponsored by Condell Health Network, includes three events: the Lakeland Publishers One Mile, the Centre Club 5K Run/Walk, and the Condell Distance Classic 10K.

Registration in person and packet pick-up will be held from 9:00 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Wednesday through Friday, Sept. 15-17, and from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 19 near Condell's Public Relations Department located near the 303 Cleveland Ave. entrance at the back of the hospital. Race day registration will be held from 7:00 to 8:30 am at the registration tent near the start line/water tower. Registration closes at 8:30 a.m.

The Distance Classic will offer a lot for families to do. The race warm-up will be held from 7:30 to 8:45 a.m. Condell's rehabilitation experts will lead registrants in proper exercises and stretching for race preparation. There will also be free Kids Activities from 8:00 to 10:30 a.m. while parents are participating in the 5K and 10K.

Condell's 1999 co-sponsors are Lakeland Publishers, Vogue Printers, Sterling Autobody, Reebok, Runners World, and Centre Club. THEATRE REVIEW

Play's not the thing at Marriott Theatre

By Gloria Davis
Correspondent

The best thing about the musical movie, "Victor, Victoria," was its extremely strong cast led by Julie Andrews in an era when she could do no wrong.

Add to that a marvelous Robert Preston playing the role of the gay musical star she emulates when she pretends to be a man after finding no opening in the world of Paris nightclubs for a female chanteuse.

Throw in as a handsome and amusing gangster James Garner for love interest as he draws some funny scenes while trying to find out if he has fallen in love with a guy or gal, to liven-up a mediocre plot filled with some of the lesser musical works of the great Henri Mancini.

Then another generation of theatergoers applauded the recent Broadway run of "Victor, Victoria," again on the strength of its star, Andrews, in a sentimental salute.

Now the Marriott Lincolnshire Theater has taken on quite a load in doing "Victor, Victoria," sans most of its strength, the stars that carried the original show.

Marriott's looser version lacks much of the class and a little of the polish that the movie had, and despite the top singing and acting talents of Paula Scrofano in the Andrews role, and the strong scene stealing of Kelly Ann Clark as the jazz era dumb blond, "Victor, Victoria" stays in its mediocre hole and Gene Weygandt comes nowhere near filling Preston's winged shoes.

The press night audience ignored many of the show's faults, enjoying an evening almost reminiscent of the old Rialto Theater by jumping to its feet applauding.

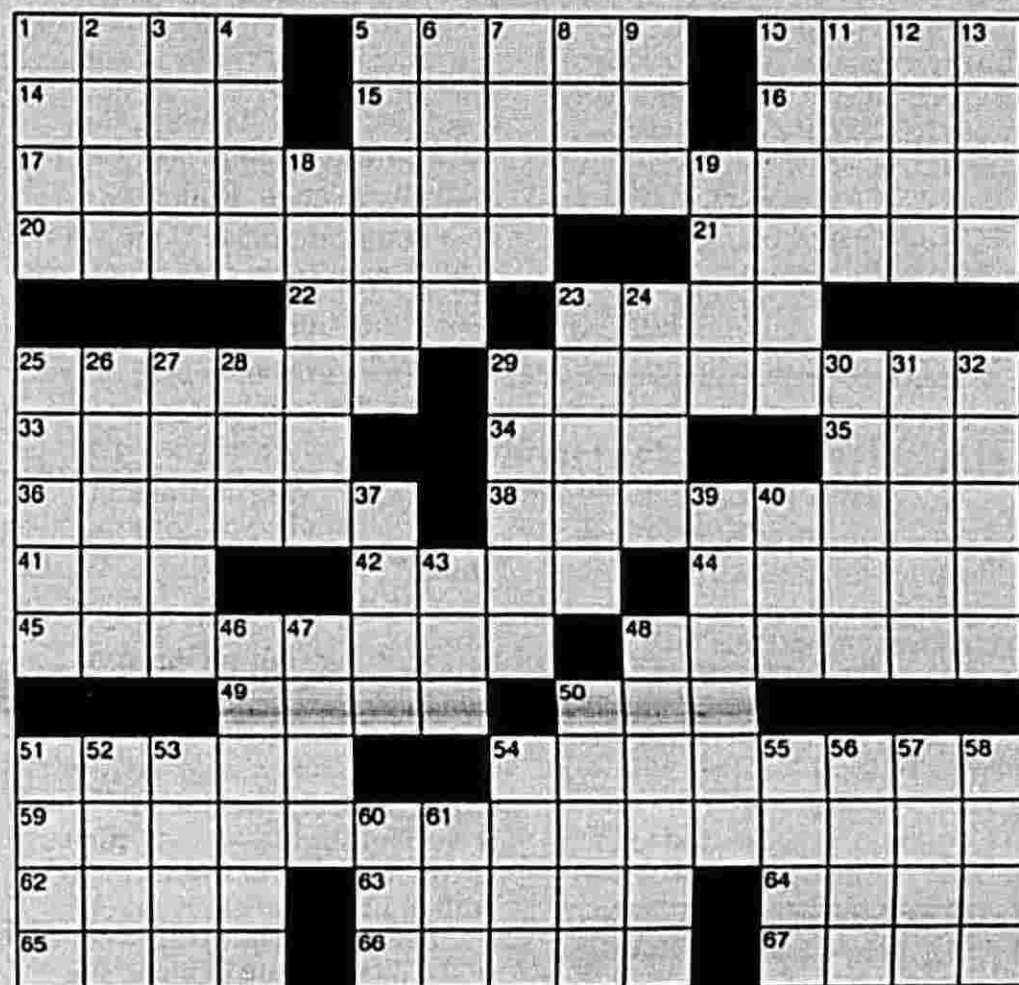

Kudos are in order for the staging, and the dancing and singing of the chorus in the outstanding nightclub scenes, so if you're looking for the tired businessman's musical delight you've found it currently cavorting on Marriott's stage. These include Norma and her girls and Victor in "Chicago, Illinois," "Louis says," "Le Jazz Hot," and the title song.

As usual, the costumes of Nancy Missimi are a pleasingly important part of the show, making this production pleasant to look at. Patti Garwood does well conducting Marriott's orchestra.

Gene Weygandt and Paula Scrofano star in 'Victor/Victoria' at Marriott Theatre in Lincolnshire.

HOROSCOPE

Aries — March 21/April 20

Keep your comments to yourself when in an important meeting early in the week, Aries. Those involved know what they are doing. Your opinions and criticism only will make matters worse. Spend time with a close friend this weekend. He or she has a lot to tell you.

Taurus — April 21/May 21

Don't let an acquaintance change your mind about a financial matter. You've looked at all of the pros and cons and made your decision. This person doesn't know all of the facts involved and, therefore, can't give you an informed opinion. Don't second-guess yourself. Leo plays an important role on Thursday.

Gemini — May 22/June 21

You have a long week ahead of you, Gemini, but don't get discouraged. If you stay focused and work diligently, you are sure to get everything done. Those closest to you will be impressed with your efforts. That special someone has a surprise for you at the end of the week. Enjoy it!

Cancer — June 22/July 22

Don't take a problem at work home with you. Once you leave the office, forget about it. The situation is not worth putting a strain on your personal relationships. Family and friends are more important. Remember that! A close friend needs a favor from you. Do what you can to help him or her. Virgo plays a key role.

Leo — July 23/August 23

Don't be shy when talking with a superior at work this week, Leo. Tell him or her what is on your mind. If you don't, you're sure to regret it later. Besides, this person really does want to hear what you have to say. A family member drops by unexpectedly late in the week. He or she needs someone to talk to; be there for him or her.

Virgo — Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't worry about a surprise that you have planned for a close friend. You have everything under control, and things are going to work out perfectly. Don't stress out. Enjoy yourself instead! A loved one needs your help with a personal problem. Do whatever you can for him or her.

Libra — Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't let a run-in with an acquaintance ruin your good mood this week, Libra. He or she is trying to get you upset about inconsequential matters. Don't give this person that satisfaction. Just walk away, and everything will be over with.

Scorpio — Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't try to monopolize a loved one's time. He or she has a lot to do and, therefore, can't spend much time with you this week. Don't get discouraged. Your relationship still is as strong as ever. A good friend turns to you for romantic advice. Be honest with him or her — even if what you have to say won't be appreciated.

Sagittarius — Nov 23/Dec 21

You have a busy schedule this week, Sagittarius. Stay focused on the tasks at hand, and don't go off on tangents. If you get sidetracked, you'll never get anything done. You meet someone interesting late in the week. Get to know this person better, because he or she has a lot to offer you.

Capricorn — Dec 22/Jan 20

Don't get cocky when you earn significant praise at work this week. While you certainly deserve the accolades, you still need to give 100 percent. Remember, the higher-ups have seen what you can do and expect more from you now. A close friend needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her.

Aquarius — Jan 21/Feb 18

Don't make a hasty decision when it comes to your financial future, Aquarius. Examine all of your options closely before deciding what to do. Even though those involved are pressuring you, take your time and make an informed choice. Libra plays an important role.

Pisces — Feb 19/March 20

Even though a loved one ignores your advice and makes a decision that gets him or her involved in a difficult situation, don't leave this person hanging. He or she truly needs your help. Do whatever you can.

'The 13th Warrior' conquers all

If you enjoy adventure, fantasy and history, this movie will have you walking away happy. The Arabian narrator, played by Antonio Banderas, and the Vikings he befriends share their cultures and abilities to defend a small village from its mysterious enemy. The forests, glens and mountains of Europe are breathtakingly captured on film in 'The 13th Warrior'. Without destroying the illusion of reality, the set designers create a landscape to rival any Dungeons & Dragons fantasy.

The cave the thirteen must traverse in order to conquer their evil enemy is cooler than the one in 'The Goonies'. First of all, this one is inhabited by much more frightening antagonists: eaters of the dead who attack with the midnight fog and associate with a ruinous fire serpent. Really, the movie combines two plots. Primarily, it chronicles the group's adventures in conquering the vicious "eaters of the dead." Underneath, the themes of bravery, honor, belief, cross-cultural under-role of Banderas' translator. However, he is left behind early in the movie, when the Vikings' bone reader says Banderas must accompany twelve Viking warriors to save a northern village that is under attack.

From the moment Banderas meets the Vikings, a supernatural fog descends. These are people unlike him, in religious belief and manner.

He prays to Allah and doesn't believe in dragons. They pray to their ancestors and consult bone readers for advice.

The movie does a good job capturing the difference between their two cultures, without over-analyzing. We watch as the men gain respect for each other. After the Vikings jeer at his horse's small stature, Banderas realizes that he must prove himself. He does so, and becomes an accepted equal on the journey.

This movie does something innovative: it blends realism, fantasy, adventure, humor and drama. It presents a historically based, yet magical, look at times long passed. For its amazing costumes, set design, acting and action, I give this movie 3 and 3/4 boxes of popcorn out of five.

standing and observation wind together.

My only complaint is that these themes weren't as well developed as they could have been in a slower-paced, less action-oriented film. However, this movie works quite well as an action/adventure film.

The story begins as Banderas' character, a poet, recounts his exile from Arabia. He's given the title of ambassador and sent to the northlands, where he has no idea what to expect.

When they encounter the Vikings, Banderas' men want to avoid them, but he asserts his power as ambassador and makes an effort to meet their leader.

Jubilee Days 10K and 2 mile Trophy Runs to be held

Zion's Jubilee Days Festival will include the 21st running of the Jubilee Days 10K Race and a 2 Mile Trophy Run sponsored by Zion Park District. This year's race will be held on Mon., Sept. 6 (Labor Day). The 10K race has eleven age divisions for both men and women. Trophies are awarded to the top three finishers in each division as well as the overall champs. The 2 Mile Run is designed to give the more casual runner a sense of accomplishment and fulfillment. Everyone who finishes the 2 Mile Run is awarded a trophy.

Entry fees for each race are as follows: 10K is $17. The 2 Mile Run is $8.

T-shirts are guaranteed to the first 150 entrants in the 10K. Fresh fruit will be available at the finish of the 10K. Water will be available at the start and finish and at two stops on the course.

Start and finish of both runs will be at East School, 2913 Elm Ave., in Zion. Check-in time is 6:30-7:30 a.m. on race day. Start time for the 2 Mile Run is 7:30 and 8 a.m. for the 10K. Both courses travel in part over the scenic bike trail in Edina Park.

Registration forms are available at the Zion Leisure Center, 2400 Dowie Memorial Dr. in Zion. For more information, call the Zion Park District at 746-5500.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number of letters is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Aras Canine has new location

It's still "reigning" the best looking cats and dogs at Aras Canine, at its new location at 36871 Highway 83, in Lake Villa, where the finest in pet grooming and training is the order of every day.

Owner Joanne Heidenberger and her exceptionally well-trained and professional staff believe that all cats and dogs are born equal when it comes to the price of looking and acting really good. The charge for all pet services is the same no matter what size or breed, whether tending to the needs of a tiny Chihuahua or a majestic St. Bernard. The rule that pets and their owners should not be penalized because of size prevails at Aras.

The staff includes a certified master groomer and a board certified groomer, who take approximately an hour to transform your pet into a well-groomed pet to be proud of.

Most dogs can be groomed for $20, depending on the condition of the coat, some will cost $25 to $30. Cats can be groomed for $25 and ferrets for $30. Pet grooming is complete with bath, hair clip, if desired, or needed, flea dip, nail trim, ears cleaned and glands being expressed.

The staff works with state-of-the-art equipment, including hydraulic and electric tables. Appointments are appreciated but walk-ins are most welcome. Pets can be dropped off or an attractive and comfortable waiting lounge is available if pet owners prefer to wait for the short hour a grooming session takes.

The cost of basic puppy behavior correction and obedience training, as well as guardian dog training, ranges from $75 to $550 depending on the type of training. Dog and owner are welcome to come together and go home trained.

Not only are Aras' staff members cognizant of the latest methods in pet grooming and behavior training, while using the newest equipment, but appointments can be made in an up-to-date, pre-millennium fashion by e-mailing aras1wc.net. Aras' staff uses no tranquilizers because everyone is trained to work with even the most difficult pets. Aras is open seven days a week, from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Call (847) 356-DOGS for more information.

Allergies can sideline students, treatment can help

Preventative steps can alleviate symptoms, keep kids active

By SANDY HARTOGH
Staff Reporter

As Lake County school children begin to take on the challenge of learning new things this year, many are faced with an obstacle that may impede their abilities to meet this challenge head-on.

According to a recent survey commissioned by Pharmacia & Upjohn, makers of a new Children's NasalCrom™, allergic children between the ages of 6 and 13 say their allergies affect their school studies.

Fall allergy season started mid-August for most allergy sufferers, according to experts at the National Allergy Bureau, a non-profit pollen and mold counting network of the American Academy of Allergy, Asthma and Immunology (AAAAI).

Donald Pulver, M.D., AAAAI Fellow and aerobiology expert explains, "Diminishing daylight and increasing night length stimulates the ragweed plant to pollinate."

However, the AAAAI does show a significant increase in suffering around Sept. 15, just in time for school.

"Ragweed counts peak at this time," explained Dr. Cheryl Walker, Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine, Section of Allergy-Immunology at Northwestern University Medical School.

"Mold counts are pretty high around this time also... and although pollen counts are usually greatest in the morning, they can be high at anytime in the Chicago area because of the wind."

These natural childhood bullies affect more than 13 million children in the U.S. The studies by Pharmacia & Upjohn have shed some important light on the learning and social problems that many allergic children have encountered as a result.

The following lists some of the pharmaceutical company's key findings:

- Twenty-nine percent say they have not done well on tests due to allergy symptoms.
- Thirteen percent have missed out on school trips.
- Eleven percent have had problems completing homework assignments.
- Thirty-four percent have missed one to five days of school, while 9 percent have missed five days or more.
- Forty-three percent of children with allergies report social problems, including teasing by other children, trouble making friends, avoidance by others because of fear of contagion.
- Twenty-two percent say their allergies make them feel left out and jealous of non-allergic friends.
- Overall, 73 percent of families with an allergic child owns a cat or dog, 34 percent of these kids are restricted from contact with their pet.

"These survey results should act as a warning to parents of school-age children," says Dr. Garry Rupp, Chief of the Division of Allergy at the Children's Hospital in Columbus, OH. "If left untreated, or if treated improperly, the effects of allergies can have implications for a child's emotional well-being."

According to Walker, there are two risk factors that predispose a child to allergies; genetics and environmental exposure. She also pointed out that while 30 to 40 percent of children lose sensitivity to allergy-causing factors in time, most children will carry their allergies throughout adulthood.

According to the National Institutes of Health, many allergic children are not receiving proper medical attention because parents fail to identify allergy symptoms correctly. Dr. Walker says frequent sneezing (10-20 at a time), runny noses, itchy eyes and nose, fatigue and lethargy are all symptoms of allergies.

She stresses the importance of early prevention with preventive medications like over-the-counter (OTC) Children's NasalCrom™ which, according to Dr. Rupp, "... helps stop the allergic process by stabilizing mast cells in the nose before they have a chance to react to allergens."

Other forms of treatments for allergies, after "identifying precipitating factors," says Walker, are avoidance measures such as prolonged outdoor exposure on high pollen count days and keeping windows closed with the air conditioning on as much as possible.

Planning more indoor activities is another way to avoid increased allergy symptoms. If needed, other OTC medications that treat symptoms can be used such as antihistamines.

A more dramatic treatment "for children with significant allergy symptoms that can seriously impact their quality of life," says Walker, is immunotherapy. This treatment is a series of injections containing small amounts of the allergen to which a person is allergic. The patient builds up a tolerance to the allergen over time.

To help parents provide their allergic children with a safe and healthy school year, the AAAAI offers the following advice:

- Tour the school to identify potential allergy triggers in the classrooms. Ask staff about school policies regarding foods brought into the classroom and animals in the school.
- Inform school staff of child's allergies. Try to understand when and where symptoms worsen and work with the school to implement control measures.
- Children who have been prescribed epinephrine should provide school with I.D. sheet with child's name, photo and specific allergy for distribution to appropriate personnel. Staff should be taught how to administer an epinephrine shot in event of emergency.
- Parents with food allergic children should work with the school to establish a no-food trading policy.

Parents interested in finding out more about allergy symptoms and treatments can read "Who Nose Best: A Consumer Booklet on Child Allergies and Prevention," which was developed by Pharmacia & Upjohn through a partnership with the National Association of School Nurses. Divorce etiquette for children

Dear Dr. Singer,

I'm divorced and going crazy! My husband doesn't have the same rules in his house as in mine and my son gets everything he wants there. When he comes home he is out of control. How can I get my husband to understand that we have to get this on track? S.T.

Dear S.T.,

This is a common question I hear a lot of. I usually suggest that the parent who is being the "Disneyland" parent or the one who gives all the good stuff and lets the child get away with things, think about what future implications this will have. Kids that get everything they want due to a divorce tend to grow up expecting the same treatment from everyone. This can become quite out of control and difficult. You're obviously concerned that your child have the best possible future. However, if you want to get through to your ex-spouse a little better, try this: a child that is never taught to earn for himself or be responsible, usually tends to be living with you much longer than you would like.

PARENT'S PLACE

While we all love our kids, at some point, we want them independent so that we aren't having to fend for them. Kids that get everything they want from one parent usually go back to that one parent for everything they want throughout time! Most parents I know don't really want this for their child's or their future. I run a behavior program that has been really successful even with divorced couples. We set up the same program in each home so that the transition is smoother for the child, easier on the parents and the rules are the same in both places. This program tends to bring even divorced parents closer in thinking. This improves kid's behavior tremendously. If you're interested in more information on the behavior program, please call me at the number listed below. Good luck!

Dear Dr. Singer, My husband and I are getting a divorce and are unsure of how to explain this to our kids. We have a 7- and 9-year-old. We want to make sure that we tell them the right way. Can you help? P.P.

Dear P.P.,

Your concern is admirable and getting your children prepared ahead of time will help. First you should know that kids are very resilient and will adjust. It does help if your presentation is calm and prepared ahead of time.

The kids I've met seem to have several fears when it comes to divorce. One fear is that they will not get to see one or the other parent at all. Another fear is that life will totally change. Another fear kids have is that they somehow caused the divorce or that it is their fault.

First, we need to reassure kids that divorce in no way, shape or form, is ever their fault. Let them off the hook! I usually ask parents to make sure to try and keep the child's life as stable as possible. Try to keep the school, home, friends, neighborhood, etc. the same in the child's life as much as can be done. The fewer adjustments the better.

More importantly, the child needs to know that he or she will have free access to both parents. Baring a physically abusive or sexually abusive situation, the children need both parents. Many times, I see two parents feuding with each other who cannot believe that a child might still like or love the other parent. The truth is, if there is a battle, it is between you and your spouse. Not between your spouse and child. Your child, more than likely, loves both of you and should. Therefore, if the child is kept out of the adult situation as much as possible and is allowed to believe that both parents will be accessible, the child usually adjusts better.

Additionally, the more you and your spouse can communicate and put your problems aside for the good of your child, the better the adjustment will be. If you make your child feel safe and then follow through, things should be O.K. You might also want to have this talk in a therapist's office since things can come up and a therapist can help you to watch for things you might not think of ahead of time. Good luck!

How will your children's future be affected if they are not absorbing and processing what they should be today?

WHAT WILL THEY MISS?

Dr. Singer can help you improve your child's processing skills, focus, concentration, motivation, behavior and attitude without using drugs.

Lake Forest Hospital foundation announces Y2K Compliance Statement

Lake Forest Hospital Foundation (LFHF) has a tradition of providing high quality personalized care, supported by state-of-the-art technology. Like other organizations that depend on technology, LFHF also faces "Year 2000 (Y2K) issues."

Although much of what has been said about Y2K may never come to pass, LFHF recognizes the Y2K issue has the potential for disrupting services if not addressed appropriately. In so far as the effects of Y2K might be seen on technology, from computer systems to environmental control equipment, LFHF has developed a detailed plan for assessment and remediation in three key areas: Information technology; biomedical equipment; facilities equipment.

The LFHF information systems department has been leading Y2K compliance efforts along with the guidance of outside consultants. A project leader, as well as a team of departmental experts, have been addressing Y2K issues over the past two years.

"Currently, we have completed the inventory, certification and project plan phases for Information Technology investments, and have completed the assessment for other equipment," said George McCulloch, vice president and chief information officer. "We are particularly focused on safety issues surrounding biomedical equipment and have assessed our equipment inventory for repairs or replacements that may be necessary to ensure superior patient care."

McCulloch continued, "Since our efforts in maintaining state-of-the-art technology are comprehensive, there are few Information Technology upgrades or replacements remaining to achieve compliance. The remediation of our Information Technology and environmental equipment is well underway and focuses on equipment upgrades, since our software is already well positioned for compliance. Additionally, our patient care equipment is in the process of being certified following assessment, and if it is not compliant it will not be used. We are confident all essential technology will be compliant in advance of our needs."

In March '97, LFHF made a strategic investment to develop its own power generating capabilities. In the unlikely event electricity is unavailable, the LFHF's co-generation plant is an alternate source of electrical power for the hospital.

"LFHF is also addressing the Y2K issue with other companies and organizations upon which we rely. Although we are monitoring and attempting to validate the efforts of others, we realize we cannot control their success in this effort," said McCulloch. "Therefore, we are in the process of establishing contingency plans where appropriate to provide alternatives in the case these organizations experience significant Y2K difficulties."

LFHF has been providing exceptional healthcare to our communities for 100 years and looks forward to continuing to serve patients well into the next century.

Victory Eldercare brings people together

Betsey Ostrowski has a new routine. Once or twice a week after work, she stops to visit Florence "Flo" Grampo, 84. Ostrowski does some light housework for Grampo and might even run some errands. Then, with the tasks completed, both ladies sit and visit over a cold drink and homemade cookies. They admire some of Grampo's crochet work and talk about their families.

Ostrowski, a Waukegan native, is a volunteer with Victory Community ElderCARE, a program through Victory Memorial Hospital (Waukegan). ElderCARE is committed to caring for frail, elderly, home-bound individuals who have limited financial resources. ElderCARE recruits, trains and coordinates people to help ensure quality of life for the elderly. Volunteers may help with correspondence or paperwork, run errands or shop for groceries, provide an escort to medical appointments or perform yard work and household chores.

"I saw the information on ElderCARE and went to a training course to see what it was like," says Ostrowski. "I thought this would be a good opportunity to spend my spare time doing something for someone else. I enjoy helping people."

Ostrowski and ElderCARE provide extra support for Grampo and her family. Grampo has a daughter and two sons who live in the area, another son in Florida and one in Michigan, plus many grandchildren. They are all willing to help when she needs it. But, they can't always be there.

"My daughter saw an ad for ElderCARE and asked me if I knew about it. I gave them a call and told them I needed some help with cleaning because I have hip and arm problems," says Grampo. The result of that phone call is a wonderful friendship.

"Volunteers receive as much as they give," says Karen Majkrzak, manager, Victory Community ElderCARE. "It's a big surprise for many of the volunteers. They go into this because they want to help someone and don't realize what they will get from it. There are a lot of history and stories to be shared."

"I lost my mom suddenly two-and-a-half years ago," says Ostrowski. "Flo reminds me a lot of my mom. I've learned a lot from her. We've shared stories. She gives me tips on cooking — good recipes, how to use different seasonings. She's very talented. She does beautiful crochet and cross-stitch projects. She has a great sense of humor. I hope I can be as active as she is when I'm 84 years old."

How does Grampo feel about Ostrowski? "She's terrific! That's all I can say. We hit it off right away."

Besides working as a secretary for an area construction firm and volunteering for ElderCARE, Ostrowski also volunteers at Saint Anastasia Church's (Waukegan) soup kitchen every week. She belongs to a weekly ladies golf league. And Ostrowski stays fit with three caridac pulmonary exercise workouts each week. For additional exercise, she takes her 7-year-old dalmatian for long walks. "I felt better when I'm busy," says Ostrowski.

Ostrowski also spends time with her family. She has two daughters. One lives in Winthrop Harbor, the other in Waukegan. Both are married and have children, giving Ostrowski three grandsons, ages 17, 7 and 3 1/2. She occasionally babysits the two youngest.

Even with all of this going on, Ostrowski makes time for ElderCARE. "I just see myself in 20-30 years and hope that I have an ElderCARE volunteer in my life. It gives elderly people the security that they have some place to call for help or advice or to talk. They don't have to be alone," says Ostrowski. "In addition to the visits, I call Flo a couple of times a week just to see how she's doing."

ElderCARE pairs volunteers and ElderCARE recipients geographically so that the volunteer doesn't have to drive too far. Pairings are also made based on the needs of the recipient and what the volunteer is willing to offer. Currently, there is a need for volunteers who can provide transportation to medical appointments. In June, ElderCARE provided forty-five trips to doctors' office.

Volunteers attend a three-hour training course that covers issues of aging, communication skills and the role of an ElderCARE volunteer. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer or finding out more about Victory Community ElderCARE, call 360-4004, between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

FALL Home & Garden '99

Fall fertilization: Research proves the grass is greener in spring

For decades, golf course superintendents in the snow belt have applied natural organic fertilizers in late fall or prior to a permanent snow cover for earlier spring green-up and root development. Homeowners in the north can apply this same practice - known as dormant fertilization - to their yards for a vibrant spring lawn.

Recent research indicates that a dormant application of an organic fertilizer such as Milorganite not only causes turfgrass to green-up a week or two earlier in spring, but also helps maintain good turf color and growth rates through mid-May. In fact, some industry experts consider fall the most important season for lawn fertilization.

The research - conducted by Dr. Wayne Kussow, a leading turf specialist at the University of Wisconsin-Madison - also indicates that turfgrass with dormant-applied Milorganite recovers from winter damage more rapidly and better handles heavy foot traffic. "Homeowners can benefit from the same practices of turf maintenance professionals," said Alan Nees, director of marketing for Milorganite Division-MMSD in Milwaukee. "They can use Milorganite on lawns, trees, shrubs, flowers and vegetables - just about anything that grows in soil. And dormant fertilization will give homeowners a head start on their spring lawns."

ganite displayed significantly darker green spring color than those without dormant applications. Research results contradict the commonly held belief that nitrogen can't be released when soil temperatures drop below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Nitrogen is the primary element responsible for early turfgrass green-up.

Speaking from Experience

No one can attest to the advantages of dormant-applied Milorganite more than a golf course superintendent. Mark Kuhns, superintendent for Oakmont Country Club, Pittsburgh, has used Milorganite for dormant feeding since 1979.

"We came out of that winter, and I was in awe," recalled Kuhns. "Since then, I've been a firm believer in Milorganite."

A resilient turf is probably the biggest advantage to dormant-applied Milorganite, according to Kuhns. "It really gives turfgrass a vibrant look in the spring," said the Pennsylvania-based superintendent. "Milorganite is able to sustain the turf throughout the severe winter months, especially January and February."

Steve Bailey, superintendent for Brown Deer Park Golf Course, Milwaukee, also can attest to the advantages of dormant-applied Milorganite. "It gives the grass an excellent start for the new golf season," he said, noting that he applies the fertilizer to a variety of areas, including fairways, greens and roughs.

Bailey has used Milorganite for nearly 30 years. Above all, he said he prefers its slow-release, non-burning formula. "There's a high burn potential for fast-release fertilizers," he explained.

Getting the Most from Milorganite
Indeed, Kussow's research proves what golf course superintendents have known for decades - that dormant-applied Milorganite improves turf quality. Homeowners also can take advantage of dormant-applied Milorganite for a resilient green lawn.

For best results, homeowners with cool-season, northern grasses (e.g., Kentucky bluegrass, fescues and ryegrass) should apply one 40-pound bag of Milorganite per 2,500 square feet of lawn in fall (after the last mowing or prior to a permanent snow cover), late spring (mid-to-late May) and late summer (late August to early September). Milorganite doesn't need to be watered-in, but watering will expedite its benefits. Milorganite's slow-release formula provides steady, uniform growth without scorching or striping lawns.

It's time for the fall color of garden mums. These hardy bloomers are one of the easiest to grow. And they display enough color to make those turning tree leaves envious. The garden mum has been called "America's Most Popular Perennial" - and with good reason. With the proper care and a bit of help from Mother Nature, garden mums have the potential to bloom again and again every autumn.

So if you need a good excuse to get outdoors this fall, grab an armload of our spectacular garden mums, available now at Leiders Garden Greenery.

A social life is important to many of us. Imagine if you didn't have one; didn't have a place where you could go to just hang out, a place to converse with friends, or what if you never had the opportunity to meet friends?

For many people the thought of never having a social life is light years away. For individuals with their primary disability with mental retardation the availability of a social life is somewhat limited.

In the 1960s Lynne Albanese was a program director at the Deborah Boys Club in Albany Park. While she was on staff there she was approached by two parents of children with mental retardation. They questioned Albanese with what programs were available for their children.

Albanese tried "mainstreaming" the children or rather integrating them into what many considered the "normal" atmosphere. However, Albanese was limited with what she could integrate the children into.

Water: Landscape budgets hit hard

By SANDY HARTOGH
Staff Reporter

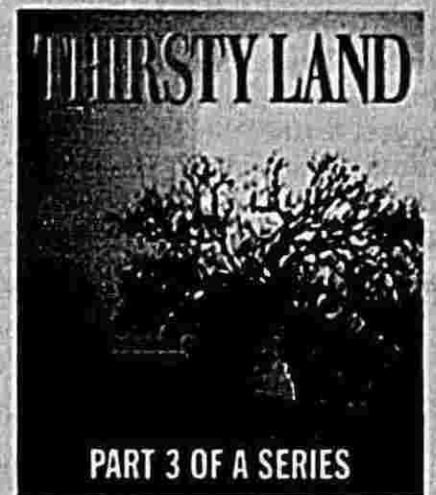

Landscaping tends to be a costly investment, particularly if professionally installed. This summer's dry spell has forced many homeowners and businesses alike to dig deeper into their pockets to sustain newly planted landscapes.

Jim Wollney, account representative for Church Landscape, a TruGreen/LandCare Company in Wadsworth, said his company received a water bill of approximately $10,000 for six to eight weeks of watering.

"I'm sure we will have a few irate customers when they see the watering charges on their landscape bill," commented Wollney, whose firm services accounts that are more corporate in nature. "We probably spent five percent of each contract value on watering. We had two-to-three workers on each site watering about ten hours per day."

He went on to say that this may prove to be detrimental in the fall because many may have already used up budgets that were targeted for the fall planting season.

The total cost factor for Church Landscape keeping up with the drought-like conditions has not been determined yet, but according to Wollney the summer annuals didn't do well and the company had to replace quite a bit of new sod, which he said requires one quarter of an inch of water per month just to keep it alive.

"Perennials, trees and shrubs were high on our priority to maintain," he said. "Turf was the last thing we worried about, because it is the least expensive to remove and replace."

If you happen to drive by newly planted business complexes and see what appears to be garbage bags hanging around the tree trunks, don't worry. ... they were put there

Route 53 fares well in state study

Report says highway would reduce traffic gridlock

Regional Editor

While not everyone agrees with the findings, a state study shows the controversial Route 53 project ranks high in terms of improved transportation system performance while minimizing negative impacts.

A study by CH2M Hill, consultants for the Lake County Transportation Improvement Project, indicates that overall transportation system performance would be improved and traffic congestion would be significantly reduced with Route 53.

And, the study showed, building Route 53 as either a freeway or tollway would result in the least number displacements of homes and businesses or impacts to natural lands of any of the eight highway alternatives under consideration.

"Route 53 jumps out as showing considerable relief," said Larry Martin of CH2M Hill, who made the presentation on behalf of the Lake County Transportation Improvement Project (LCTIP).

The project is a joint venture of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority and Illinois Department of Transportation to study ways to address anticipated future traffic gridlock.

Martin first outlined the analysis at a press conference at the LCTIP office in Mundelein. Many of the findings also have been presented to the public at informational meetings in Kildeer, Gurnee and Mundelein.

Other alternatives the project is looking at include: widening Interstate 94 from six to eight lanes; widening Routes 83 and 45 from four to six lanes; widening Illinois 21 from four to six lanes; widening U.S. 12 from four to six lanes; and widening Illinois 120 from two/four lanes to six lanes with the possibility of a bypass of Grayslake to the south.

Of the alternatives, the study found Route 53 would result in the least number of impacts in terms of home and businesses displacements. It would also have the least impacts on wetlands and natural lands, and greatly reduce congestion

Lake County officials have made it clear to municipalities they are serious about enforcing regulations established in the new watershed development ordinance.

"This is a countywide law now," said Larry Leafblad, chairman of the County Board's Planning, Building and Zoning committee. "It's effective in both the municipalities and the unincorporated areas. It affects watershed terrain and setbacks that everybody has to adhere to, whether

Dalai Lama has 'peaceful' visit to the Chicago area

Jannan J. Khuri
Correspondent

Over 3,000 people had the opportunity to hear His Holiness, the 14th Dalai Lama give a talk on Ethics for the New Millennium. The Field Museum, along with the Tibetan Alliance of Chicago, hosted the event to promote the Tibetan Culture and to help make the people of Chicago aware of the political situation in Tibet.

In 1959, the Dalai Lama was forced into exile to India after the Chinese military's occupation of Tibet. Since that time the Dalai Lama has traveled around the world to promote and preserve the Tibetans' way of life and to promote a peaceful resolution to the Chinese's occupation of his homeland. In 1989 he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts in the liberation of Tibet which consistently has opposed the use of violence.

Bill Kurtis, an award-winning television news journalist, was the moderator for the event held in the museum's Stanley Field Hall which included performances by the Chicago Tibetan Children's Dance Troupe and the San Francisco-based Tibetan performing arts group, Chaksampa which means "Bridge Builder." The name is a tribute to the 14th Century Tibetan Saint Thangtong Gyalpo, founder of the Ache Lhamo, the Tibetan opera. Academy award winning actress, Goldie Hawn gave the introductions for the Tibetan Children's Dance Troupe and has joined with many other celebrities as an advocate for the Dalai Lama and the cause of Tibet.

The Dalai Lama's public address was held at the museum in conjunction with the Tibetan

Art of Healing Exhibit and was consistent with the Buddhist beliefs of non-violence and compassion for other human beings.

Some of the Dalai Lama's "Ethics for the New Millennium" were based from his own experience throughout his life and how he has dealt with difficult life situations.

The Dalai Lama said people are all the same physically, emotionally and mentally and have the potential to do good or to do harm to others. In dealing with difficult situations in life the Dalai Lama said it is helpful to look at the situation with a holistic approach and not just from the negative point of view. Instead look to what good can come out of what may seem a bad situation.

He also said that forgiveness, respect for others and giving back to the community and having tolerance for others are all keys to success in life. When practicing these qualities, an individual can be successful in life.

His advice for children is, "On the basis of compassion you can change the world for better in the next century." He added that we must make good preparations for the new millennium. He said children should care and have respect for their elders, parents and grandparents.

As part of his world travels, The Dalai Lama tries to promote the Tibetan culture and said it's hard to access how quickly the Tibetan culture is disappearing. In Tibet, if you go to a restaurant or go shopping you have to speak Chinese. Intentionally or unintentionally it's cultural genocide. He also said one can find Tibetan culture similar to how it's being preserved by the Tibetan Alliance of Chicago outside of the country of Tibet.

Steve Infantino, teaches Philosophy of World Religions at the College of Lake County and commented on the approach of the Dalai Lama takes when dealing with the situation in Tibet.

"When you have been oppressed and your people have been murdered and your culture is about to be wiped out, I think then it takes courage to take what would normally be a reaction of anger and to let that anger go and to still hang onto the non-violent attitude," Infantino said.

"This non-violence," said Infantino "is really a part of Buddhism."

Infantino said he thinks it's important for the Dalai Lama to visit Chicago and try to make people aware of what is happening to Tibetans and trying to make Chicagoans aware of the brotherhood and sisterhood of all human beings.

He said if he had an opportunity to talk to the Dalai Lama he would ask him, "What enables him to maintain hope that Tibet will become free and independent?"

His understanding of the current political situation has the Chinese colonizing and settling in Tibet. Infantino added that what usually happens in similar situations is the native culture becomes secondary.

Infantino has read some of the Dalai Lama's writing and said from that the Dalai Lama believes that violence just makes matters worse "In the long run violence just breeds more violence," Infantino said of the Dalai Lama's writing.

Forest preserve tests cleaner fuel

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

In an effort to improve air quality by reducing diesel engine emissions, the Lake County Forest Preserves are testing a new blend of biodiesel fuel in their trucks and equipment.

"It's basically a cleaner burning fuel and it's from a renewable resource," said Bob Scherer, fleet manager for the forest preserve district. "It's a 20 percent blend."

The forest preserves in July started using biodiesel fuel as part of a four-month demonstration project in the majority of the fleet's vehicles and equipment. The project is aimed at reducing hydrocarbon and particulate emissions from diesel engines, improving air quality and creating cleaner operating engines with higher performance.

While normal diesel fuel is 100 percent sulfur diesel, biodiesel is a blend of 80 percent low sulfur diesel and a 20 percent soybean supplement.

"It reduces emissions," he said. "We are an environmental agency and our mission is to protect the environment. This is an initiative we took to protect the environment and reduce emissions."

The only drawback is the cost. Biodiesel fuel in this area runs about 20 to 25 cents a gallon more than regular diesel fuel, according to Scherer.

While biodiesel fuel is more expensive, Scherer said it is also higher octane, providing for a cleaner running engine, improved engine performance and better gas mileage. He anticipates the price for biodiesel fuel will come down substantially as demand for the product becomes greater in this area. He said biodiesel is already popular in other states like Missouri and Iowa.

During the four-month demonstration project, the forest preserve will undergo strict testing procedures. Vehicles were given an engine and emissions test at the start of the project. Over the testing period, forest preserve staff will continue to monitor emissions, analyze oil samples and inspect the engines for cleaner operating conditions and improved performance.

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Fox River makes EPA action list

Fox Lake—Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) has reconsidered its earlier decision to leave the Fox River off a statewide list of waters in need of cleanup plans and a plan will be forthcoming for three segments from McHenry to Geneva.

Fox River advocates, critical of the IEPA's inaction despite what they say are threats to the Fox River, welcomed the news and are urging IEPA to move forward as quickly as possible. The turnabout apparently came after pressure from the U.S. EPA, which had yet to approve the state EPA's proposed list of clean-up plans.

Robert Moore, executive director of the Prairie Rivers Network, said, "USEPA stepped in and recognized the water quality problems facing the Fox River. Illinois EPA had not acknowledged these problems for over a year, but now realizes the Fox needs attention."

Village cautions residents on lead levels

Wauconda—The Village of Wauconda Public Works Department has sent a letter to residents to be cautious of the amount of lead in the water system.

"Although most homes have very low levels of lead in their drinking water, some homes in the community have lead levels above the EPA action level of 15 parts per billion, or 0.015 milligrams of lead per liter of water. Under Federal law, we are required to have a program in place to minimize lead in the drinking water by Feb. 25, 1998. This program includes corrosion control treatment, source water treatment, and public education. We are also required to replace lead service line that we control if the line contributes lead concentration of 15 ppl or more after we have completed the comprehensive treatment program," the Aug. 30 letter states.

The letter outlines health effects of lead, found in lead-based paint, air, soil, household dust, food, certain types of porcelain and pewter, and water.

Mundelein not affected by Dutch elm disease

Mundelein—It appears that Mundelein has been able to evade the wrath of the dreaded Dutch elm disease.

According to Public Works Director Kenneth Miller, there have been "no reports and no sightings" of Dutch elm disease on trees in Mundelein.

This is not the case in Gurnee, however, where the disease has affected trees on the east side of the village. Gurnee Village Administrator James Hayner said that an estimated 60 to 70 trees have been infected with Dutch elm disease, which affects a tree's ability to conduct water.

Residents in Gurnee have been sent letters regarding the disease and will have 30 days to cut down the infected trees on their property. If the tree has not been removed within 30 days, the village will remove the tree and the homeowner will be billed.

Woodland approves TIF resolution

Gurnee—The Woodland School District 50 Board of Education approved a resolution at its latest meeting which opposes the creation of a tax increment financing (TIF) district for Lakehurst Mall in Waukegan.

"We've been hearing from different people that the City of Waukegan is trying to designate [the Lakehurst area] as TIF," said Tami Stough, public relations coordinator for Woodland.

Stough said District 50 has heard conflicting reports regarding the formation of a TIF at Lakehurst. Some reports have stated that the TIF district will be formed only if Lakehurst Mall is the chosen site of the University Center. Other reports have stated that the TIF district will be formed regardless of the University Center decision.

"Regardless of the University Center, we don't want a TIF," said Stough.

If the TIF district was formed, Woodland would lose out on property tax revenue from that area for many years. Stough said Woodland gets approximately $392,000 in property taxes from that area.

RLB man arrested for sexual abuse

Aug. 25 by Round Lake Beach police on charges of aggravated criminal sexual abuse.

Raymond Koch, 28, of 1827 Cedar Lake Rd, has been accused of sexually abusing a 15-year-old girl while she was at his residence on Aug. 19.

The juvenile told police she fell asleep at Koch's home after watching movies, and awoke to find him sexually touching her and using her hand to touch himself.

Koch told police he didn't remember touching the juvenile, who had fallen asleep on his bed. He said he was a heavy sleeper and thought it was his wife, and may have "rolled over" on the juvenile by mistake.

After more questioning, police arrested Koch for aggravated criminal sexual abuse and transported him to bond court. Nineteenth Judicial Circuit Court Associate Judge George Bridges set Koch's bond at $75,000.

Koch will have a preliminary hearing in front of Associate Judge Victoria L. Martin Sept. 7.

RLB to institute justice program

Round Lake Beach—A community-wide crime-prevention program combining village government, police, citizens, schools and many other organizations is in the works due to the initiative of the Round Lake Beach Police Department.

Aside from North Chicago, Round Lake Beach is the only village in Lake County to participate in this unique program that aims to pool the resources of all the communities of the Round Lake area and Hainesville together to address and remedy public safety issues.

Through the Institute for Public Safety Partnerships, created by the U.S. Department of Justice, and COP grants, project trainers from the Chicago Alliance for Neighborhood Safety will come to Round Lake Beach in September to instruct the communities on how to work together to solve different problems within their neighborhoods.

Finding permanent solutions to problems with the assistance of the community is a way to develop solidarity and build trust between citizens and police, said Commander John Laycock.

CASA seeks volunteers

Lake County—CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates) of Lake County, has helped hundreds of area children by giving them a voice.

The national, non-profit organization protects the interest of the child in the juvenile court system.

CASA is made up of volunteers, who are assigned to a case where they get to know the child and their individual needs. They investigate, evaluate and make recommendations to the court on the child's behalf.

CASA, Lake County is always looking to recruit new volunteer advocates. No special background is needed, just a sincere interest. Volunteers are screened and must complete a 35-hour training program and continuing education. Volunteers spend approximately 10-15 hours a week working on their assigned case.

For more information on how to become a volunteer, contact CASA, Lake County at 634-2229.

Applefest takes place

Wauconda—Hay rides, pony rides, bands and more will join the apple and raspberry picking fun this weekend at Wauconda Orchards. The Orchards, located off Gossell Road, hosts its annual Applefest Sept. 4-6. Bands and a three-acre corn maze will be part of the fun.

"We have a three-acre corn maze cut out. People have to find their way out of the entrance. It is a lot of fun for all," Richard Breeden, president of The Apple Orchards, said.

Between 4 and 6 p.m. Saturday, a balloon launch will take place. Sunday highlight will be the 20th annual pig roast. Area farmer Jack Knoll gathers 10 pigs and cooks them to his own recipe. "He started it in 1979 and has kept it going since," Breeden said. About 5,000 people attend the event, helping to kickoff the apple picking season. Wauconda Orchards is in its 40th year.

Gallery Walk becoming a favorite

Libertyville—The MainStreet Association's Gallery Walk has completed its debut into Libertyville community life. This new event, which is held the last Thursday of every month from 5 to 8 p.m., is well on its way to becoming an old favorite among residents, according to Carolyn Dellutri, executive director of the association.

The idea of the Gallery Walk is to create an evening of community involvement in the downtown area while highlighting the unique variety of products and services available in Libertyville. People enjoying the evening's festivities may indulge in music, food, shopping, and even watching artists paint or draw.

Each quarter, the event will center around a new theme. The Gallery Walk's first quarter, which featured "Art, Antiques & Home Furnishings," ended on Aug. 26. October through December, the Walk will feature "Gifts, Clothing & Other Cool Stuff." January through March, "Restaurants, Taverns & Coffee Shops" will be the new theme.

Vernon Hills campus opens Sept. 7

Libertyville—The Super Kmart of high schools will soon open its doors to Lake County students. The Vernon Hills campus of Libertyville High School District 128 will open Sept. 7 for classes.

The building consists of five modules which will house four gyms, a pool, two theaters, nine science laboratories, an athletic rehabilitation and training center, a nautilus, and a television studio.

There are 2,400 computer stations located throughout the school. Every classroom contains a computer, at least eight electrical outlets, and a video/television monitor.

Four computer labs, along with a television production unit, will encourage students to learn new technology. The labs will include: a technical lab, a modular applied technology lab, a graphics lab and a computer assisted drafting (CAD) lab.

The school also has an outdoor area that may be used as an amphitheater by the school.

'Kinder, gentler' role described for Rte. 53

After public meetings at Kildeer, Gurnee and Mundelein, it is abundantly clear that Lake County Transportation Improvement Project officials have cast the controversial Rte. 53 extension in a new light, depicting the duplicative tollway as a "kinder, gentler" solution to highway transportation problems.

Project engineers have calculated that widening and upgrading Rte. 45 and 83 would impact or uproot 270 businesses and homes, more than four times the number of private parcels involved in pushing Rte. 53 through mid-county to a point south of Grayslake. Project personnel even see Rte. 53 as more environmentally friendly than the other seven options being studied.

This new depiction of the $2 billion dollar plus monument to urban sprawl flies in the face of previous findings that Rte. 53 would be an environmental disaster. Opponents of Rte. 53 long have viewed the required federal and state environmental impact study as an "ace in the hole." Indeed, there is a disproportionately large number of wetlands and protected areas in the Rte. 53 corridor.

David Lutyens, project director, went so far as to say Rte. 53 is "not an ogre."

If we get the message, Rte. 53 can be built while we go about clunking along existing highways, cursing gridlock and traffic delays. At a magical moment, the gates to a new tollway will be opened and we can zoom happily away.

Somehow, this idyllic projection seems more than a little far-fetched.

Forest preserves: 2 different worlds

Lake-Cook Rd., heavily traveled and often grid-locked, separates two different worlds. The chasm separating Lake and Cook counties is well defined. On the north side is Lake County, a special place. We do our level best to keep it that way.

One of the big differences between Lake and Cook County is the way the respective Forest Preserve Districts are managed. The Lake County Forest Preserve District, much younger and much smaller (about a third of the Cook County system of 68,000 acres), is a jewel, a civic pride and joy. Cook County Forest Preserve District has become a symbol of neglect, steeped in official and public indifference. An editorialist called the Cook County preserves a "filthy mess," an enclave for bureaucratic bungling and profiteering.

What a different picture in Lake County. Preserves are pleasant experiences for bikers and hikers. There is clean and well kept space for picnics and play fields. Ponds and lakes offer inviting challenges for anglers of all ages. Facilities are safe. Four self-supporting golf courses are examples of professional links management. Complaints are few and far between.

There is politics involved in the Lake County Forest Preserve District as one might expect in any public body. But it's politics stemming from a desire to protect, not plunder.

The current leadership is vested in elected President Carol Calabrese and appointed executive director Steven K. Messerli. They and staff professionals are doing their jobs well, carrying on a tradition of excellence and service.

With their participation and their pocketbooks, residents demonstrate that they recognize and appreciate what a tremendous resource the Lake County Forest Preserve Dist. has become. May it always remain that way.

VIEWPOINT

Gurnee is being proactive dealing with an emerging environmental scourge—Dutch elm disease.

The malady that ranksacked the countryside 30 years ago has returned.

When more than 60 elms were found to be infested, Gurnee Admin. James Hayner swung into action, informing householders to remove damaged elms as soon as possible. Village officials opted for burning as the most viable means for dealing with the deadly disease.

Gurnee residents will have until mid-October to remove infected trees before village crews cut down the stricken elms and bill property owners. Other villages are sure to be following suit.

What makes Dutch elm disease control so difficult is that elms thrive in the Lake County climate. Trees wiped out in an infestation three decades ago have been largely replaced by new elm growth. Now the stately trees are under assault again. What we really need is a disease resistant elm.

Illegal entry

Pretty tricky of some kids, enrolling on the sly at Stevenson High School when they aren't residents of the district. I've always heard of kids wanting to sneak out of school, but never about the ones wanting to sneak into school. Student Services Dir. Gayle Karhanek has called in Lincolnshire police to help round up the illegals, said to number about a dozen. Police Chief Randy Melvin took on his new "border patrol" duties kind of sheepishly. It's not easy branding as criminals kids who just want to get a good education.

Catchy Cats

Northwestern over the years has been pretty good at promoting catchy slogans that are more interesting usually than the Purple elevens on the field. This year it's "Maximize the moment." All 3,600 moments per game. The NU drum-beaters are looking for their Wildcat stalwarts to play hard and be physical 3,600 moments every Saturday. Big order. That's 39,600 moments to maximize for the season. Phew. And those guys have to attend class, too.

AI cleared

Correction! County Board Rep. Al Westerman (R-Waukegan) isn't the fire-breathing advocate for a total ban on leaf burning in unincorporated areas as might have been construed from a recent column. Sorry, Al.

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

On the contrary, the rational and reasonable official intended for public hearings to do exactly what they did, provide another side to the heated argument on how best to dispose of leaves. "We were getting lots of mail in support of a ban. I felt it would be beneficial to hear from all sides of the public." Westerman's view is that a total ban won't be enacted.

Al also cleared up the question on the origin of the leaf burning ban proposal. Somewhere within the bowels of the County Health Dept. At this juncture, no one wants to take "credit" for raising the issue. Westerman says there are good laws in place to control leaf burning, including the "50 foot rule" and a prohibition against burning garbage.

There is evidence now that a radical fringe tried to fast track the burning ban. A total ban backer, Rep. Bob Sabonjian (D-Waukegan), wrote fellow board members April 18 to "fix this problem now before the opposition has the opportunity to realize what we are trying to accomplish..." So much for representative government.

New chamber look

Sometime in October, Lake County's largest business organization, the LMV Chamber of Commerce, will unveil a new logo to characterize a new era of growth, adding a "G" to its name for Green Oaks. Officially, it's the GLMV Chamber. Dwight Houchins, president/CEO, said favoritism was dispelled by accepting the fact that the letters are in alphabetical order. "Besides," Houchins added, "it sounds good."

Green Oaks Mayor Tom Adams pushed hard for his community to become affiliated with a business group. Lake Forest-Lake Bluff Chamber of Commerce was checked out, but dropped in favor of the Libertyville-Mundelein-Vernon Hills group. In deference to origin, "L" will be the largest letter in the logo, since the former Libertyville Chamber was instrumental in bringing tri-town businesses together.

Boating bash

Two Illinois governors, present and past, headline a delegation of officials who will be in Winthrop Harbor from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 4, to celebrate the 10th anniversary of North Point Marina. Former Gov. Jim Thompson will review his dedication of the marina, the midwest's premier facility for boaters. You don't have to be a boater to enjoy the event, entitled End of Summer Beach Bash. Likely to outshine the politicians will be Capt. Bill Pinkney, who became the first African-American to sail solo around the world in 1991.

Jim Edgar feels the 'Sting of Ryan-Daley'

The one thing that I have been most surprised about of the "post-election rhetoric" has been the "anti-Edgar" talk that came from both Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley and Governor George Ryan. The undertone was a bitterness toward former Governor Jim Edgar. Daley praised Ryan for "doing more for the city of Chicago in six months than Edgar had done in eight years."

I guess that it is good politics for a big-city mayor to praise a sitting governor and especially if the governor is from the opposite political party. For years, it has been said that any Democrat Chicago mayor quietly favored having a Republican governor; and sometimes not so quietly. The mayor, by controlling a large bloc of Chicago legislators, could deliver those votes for the governor and "cut a deal" for the "mayor's agenda."

SEEING IT THROUGH

Who am I to defend a former Republican governor, but I do believe that Jim Edgar has taken some bad raps that he doesn't deserve. During the "Edgar years," Chicago may not have received all that it wanted from the state, but I believe that it received its fair share of the state's budget. Edgar didn't go overboard in spending, but I can't fault him for that.

Come to think of it, I don't recall any of this "Edgar-bashing" while he was in office. It is much easier, isn't it, to bash someone after they are out, when they don't have a "political hammer" to "even the score?"

There are some who say that the Ryan-Edgar schism goes way back, about when Edgar became Secretary of State. When then Secretary of State Alan Dixon became U.S. Senator, Governor Jim Thompson appointed his aide, Jim Edgar to the coveted spot. Ryan was lobbying for it as a stepping stone for his ambition to become governor, but he had to "wait his turn."

My guess is that the "anti-Edgar

Waller to convene meeting on violence

State's Attorney Michael Waller has scheduled a countywide conference on domestic violence issues Tuesday, Oct. 26, at College of Lake County. A wide range of topics will be covered between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

While geared for professionals such as counselors and law enforcement officers, the conference will be open to all interested persons.

Waller reported that the state attorney's office handles about 300 domestic violence cases per month, which he regards as "tremendous."

The state attorney long has been pro-active in dealing with domestic violence, spearheading a victim's shelter, creating a domestic violence courtroom and establishing a children's room in the courthouse where children can be insulated from harsh court proceedings.

Success formula

State Sen. Terry Link (D-Vernon Hills), who doubles as Lake County Democratic chairman, has hit upon a sure fire formula for attracting attendance for quarterly meetings. "We feed them," Link chuckles. The formula worked like a charm last week when nearly 100 persons turned out to hear a Democratic state officer, Comptroller Dan Hynes.

Press aide

George Sigalos, a Beltway information specialist, has taken over as press secretary for Congressman Phil Crane (R-Ill.) in his Washington, DC office.

No thank you

It's doubtful whether Principal and acting Superintendent Elizabeth McDonald of Grayslake High School sent thank you notes to village council members for making a bad parking problem worse. Due to construction, student parking is in a snarl. Village trustees hiked parking violations to $25, presenting major headaches for student drivers. Maybe Grayslake parents ought to consider the "Barrington Solution." Remember the parents who bought a house near the school grounds so their offspring wouldn't have to walk far after parking?

Phone scam

Wauconda Fire Chief David Dato is dismayed that scam artists continue to raise ill-begotten funds in the name of fire and police departments. Dato points out that the safety agencies seldom if ever conduct telephone fund-raising campaigns. If in doubt, hang up.

Face of mystery

"Was that the mayor?" That was the popular question during the Gurnee Days parade, as bystanders questioned the identity of every important-looking man who went by.

Could there actually be people in Gurnee who do not know Mayor Richard Welton from Adam?

Even more interesting was the Village float. While the float introduced the "Mayor and trustees," only Welton and Trustee Verna Rocheleau graced the crowd with their presence.

Several bystanders wondered whether Welton had done something to upset the other trustees, resulting in their non-attendance on the float.

Will next Thursday be your lucky day?

My friendly advice to you, which is free and probably worth exactly what you pay for it, is to play the Illinois lottery's "pick four" game next Thursday with these numbers: 9999.

Also, you might want to rush to the racetrack and bet on the No. 9 horse in the ninth race.

Because next Thursday is Sept. 9, also known as 9-9-99. There just might be a little supernatural numerology at work that day.

This sort of thing happens only once every 11 years. The next time will be Oct. 10, 2010, or 10-10-10. Remember 8-8-88? That occasion was celebrated with a certain reverence by folks observing birthdays and wedding anniversaries.

It also was celebrated in the baseball world with the Chicago Cubs playing their first night game under new lights in Wrigley Field.

Prediction: On Sept. 9, 1999, the Cubs (one of the Chicago nines) will score nine runs but still lose the game. (That one was easy.)

Eleven years ago, on 8-8-88, fledgling gamblers flocked to racetracks and lottery-ticket outlets to play those numbers, just in case—but, alas, they didn't come up.

Nevertheless, some folks had fun with 8-8-88. A Dallas man, Phil Anders, brought 88 baseball fans to the Texas Rangers' stadium for a game with the Detroit Tigers.

Anders purchased 88 tickets in Section 208 and, at precisely 8:08 p.m., those 88 fans stood and raised their placards emblazoned with the No. 8.

Calling themselves the "Crazy Eights," the fans ate 88 hot dogs in the eighth inning. Earlier, they had a tailgate party beginning at 5:08 p.m.

Anders borrowed a 1988 Oldsmobile 88 for the party. He also paid a radio station to fly its traffic helicopter in figure-8s over the stadium while a disc jockey played the song "Eighter from Decatur."

Said Anders: "Maybe for 9-9-99 we can get 99 people, charter a plane and try to attend nine baseball games in one day. We could start on the East Coast and end up on the West."

Since ancient times, odd numbers have been considered luckier than even numbers. Nine is a noble digit, indicating a high degree of excellence, perfection itself being "ten." Those of us who aren't considered "tens" gladly would settle to be considered "nines." (Okay, "eights," even.)

Next Thursday, couples who were married on Sept. 9, 1990, may celebrate their ninth anniversaries as something a little special. Children born on 9-9-90 will be having their ninth birthdays, and their parents may see that they are "dressed to the nines," which means smartly, splendidly, looking one's best.

Throughout the ages, people have attributed certain characteristics to certain numbers; for example, the association of 13 with bad luck.

In numerology, the study of the occult significance of numbers, 9 is the number that puts one through life's tests. It is the most humanitarian of numbers and should be treated with great respect. (Or at least with a friendly little wager now and then.)

So, shall we venture out and play it, or just hang around and wait for 10-10-10?

Seniors need help with buying prescription medication

Most employee Health Insurance programs pay for outpatient prescription drugs but Medicare does not. These drugs are an essential part of curing or prevention diseases. Because of this non-coverage seniors have to look elsewhere for prescription drug coverage. This is often expensive. About 65 percent of Medicare clients have some coverage but often it has some serious limitations resulting in high out-of-pocket costs.

AARP believes this prescription benefit is a must to keep abreast of advances in medicine. Seniors need this benefit as they represent about 12 percent of the population but account for over 33 percent of drug spending.

Why should we have Medicare to make it able to seniors to have access to a physician's diagnosis and then deny them the benefit of medicine to help cure or prevent the problem?

In 1999 Wall Street Journal reported 80 percent of retirees, use a prescription drug every day with an average Medicare beneficiary taking 18 prescription drugs a year.

Next year Medicare officials believe about 16 million seniors will have NO coverage at all. This must be corrected or all of us will be bordered with rising costs of keeping older Americans in some type of nursing home.

AARP Chapter 3978
Spring Grove

Expected bias

Grayslake Mayor Carey's letter about the University Center caught my eye, and this is an answer to her expected bias toward a Grayslake campus including CLC and the University.

That the site would provide educational services and programs in the most cost-effective, efficient and effective manner is a great objective, so let's look at the facts with this objective as a goal:

1. The geographic location of the Junior College has nothing to do with the fact that the campus is best serving Lake County. The site was first offered to the State Board of Education if they would place the four-year college (Governors State) at the location on Washington Street. That was 1964.

The land was offered by its owners, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Brandel (who also owned "Picket Fence Farm"—now the Rollins Savanna). When the State Board of Higher Education placed the four-year university in the far south suburbs, Anderson and Brandel were again approached by the junior college board to donate the land for College of Lake County, which they did. Simply, CLC is there because of the gift of land, not because it happened to be centrally located.

2. Regarding the cost, which will be paid by all Lake County taxpayers: Did the mayor forget about the $3 million offer from the City of Waukegan? Or, the cost of a new building, or filling/mitigating wetlands?

3. Then, the traffic. How many four-lane highways surround the present CLC site? How many around Lakehurst? Four: 41, 43, 120 and the tollway. And remember, there has been discussion of an Amtrak stop at the western side of the Lakehurst location for at least six years.

It is clear that majority of residents in the area DO NOT WANT more of anything, let alone a new university further complicating their ability to get around.

SEEING: Anti-Edgar talk is surprising rhetoric" has had a "short shelf life." The former governor knows something about politics, too, and he was quick to respond. Edgar granted a fairly lengthy newspaper interview. It was done in a formal, "tasteful" way. He said that Governor Ryan's "honeymoon" could be short-lived and that most governors enjoy a successful first legislative session. He also made the point that the "hurrahs" about Ryan's Illinois—FIRST PROGRAM may backfire after the years go by, much as Thompson's Build Illinois program withered as time went on.

I read into the Edgar interview that he, in a polite way, was telling Governor Ryan, Mayor Daley, and anyone else who cared to listen that "you can snap at me if you want, but, like a turtle, I'll snap back. As one who seems comfortably settled in the "ivory towers of university life," Edgar has nothing to lose by sounding off. By the way, I believe that his strategy has paid off, because the "anti-Edgar talk," if there is any, isn't being done in public.

Speaking of the Ryan-Daley "love-affair," I'm sure that there are many in both political parties wondering how long it will last, and, if it does last, how it will affect the fortunes, or misfortunes, of both political parties. After all, there is a rather big election coming up this "next millennium," and there is a lot at stake, given the re-districting that occurs after next year's census.

Given the political history of Chicago-Springfield "love-fests," I believe that Democrats have more to fret over the political "arrangement." The old saying that "all politics is local," bears out, and I have seen too often that Chicago puts most of its "eggs" in the "local basket." In other words, Chicago likes to do politically what will bring the most in return, and the Daley-Ryan "togetherness" kind of puts Ryan in the driver's seat.

When it comes to the presidential race next year, does that mean that Ryan's choice, Texas Governor George Bush, may benefit from the new political "odd-couple?" It may, but I recall when Chicago's "first" Mayor Daley went "hell-bent" in supporting the Democrat presidential standard bearer just to show those who thought there was "deal-making" with the opposition. The present Mayor Daley has his Washington connections, too, and may even have other political aspirations that would be damaged if he didn't go "all out" for the Democrats on the national ticket. There is a lot of time to sort that all out, and even though it looks as though both parties have already "anointed" their choices, the fickle public has not spoken yet.

The point of all of this, though, is that the two strongest positions in Illinois are those of governor and the mayor of Chicago. There is even some argument over which is stronger. When you get together the two persons who hold the positions in "lock-step," there is always something to worry about. I know and respect both Governor Ryan and Mayor Daley, but I still believe that all of us are better off when the political relationships aren't too close. That fellow who upset the political applecart in Minnesota may have proved my point.

CEL: Helping mentally handicapped

"There was really nothing else appropriate where they would experience success," Albanese said.

From those parents' inquiry the Center for Enriched Living was developed. As a need arose a class or activity was added and as the need changed they accommodated by forming specific groups.

In the past 30 years CEL has gone from serving two members to now over 250 members a week.

CEL offers social, recreational and independent living skills to all members.

Denise Jaffe, program director, said.

Skills such as dialing the phone to order a pizza may be routine for many but for individuals with developmental disabilities that certain skill may need to be taught and re-taught until the individual can do it on their own.

CEL also offers health classes to emphasize the importance of personal hygiene and first aid.

"There is no age and no geographic boundaries," Albanese said.

Anyone wishing to make a donation or inquire about the programs at CEL please contact Harriet Levy, director of development, at (847) 948-7001.

THIRSTY LAND: Economy hurt intentionally. They are Gator Bags™, a portable irrigation system that has helped Church and many other landscape companies fight the drought. These 20-50 gallon plastic bags zip together to form a unique watering system that is both cost and time effective. The bags slowly release water over a period of time through a tiny hole in the bottom of the bag, providing a good soak to new trees. According to Wollney, the bags are filled two or three times a week.

"When our bags are empty, the construction crews on the site hoist them high into the trees," he said. "This lets us know that they need re-filling."

Wollney advises homeowners that they can devise their own portable watering system by simply punching a small hole in the bottom of a five-gallon bucket and placing it next to the tree. He claims it "basically does the same thing" as the Gator Bags™.

Another problem, encountered by large corporations pumping water from ponds and lakes to irrigate lawns, was the danger of lowering water levels beyond the requirements needed for adequate fire prevention, according to Wollney.

He said that one such corporation in Lincolnshire attempted to replenish its corporate pond with well water, but the sulfur odor emanating from the well water forced them to stop.

Wollney pointed out that bark mulch was another saving factor during the dry spell. Not only does it help the soil when it decomposes, but it also helps to keep moisture in. The mulched plants "did much better" tolerating the excessive heat and lack of water, he noted.

RTE. 53:
Best plan proposed

on local roads. The proposed Route 53 extension would begin where the current highway ends at Lake Cook Road and extend north to Route 120 near Grayslake.

The widening of Routes 45/83 had the greatest negative impact in terms of displacements of homes and businesses, according to the study. Proposed improvements to Routes 12 and 120 had the greatest impact in terms of encroachments to natural lands and wetlands, the study showed.

Despite cost and potential impacts, state officials say additional road improvements will be needed to address the long-term traffic congestion problems caused by the county's exploding population. Population projections estimate that 250,000 new residents will move to Lake County by the year 2020, creating even more gridlock on local roads than now exists.

The state currently has 74 miles of baseline improvements slated to be done over the next 20 years.

Even with those improvements, if the population projections are correct, the average 10-mile trip in 2020 will take motorists about 42 to 43 minutes, according to Dave Lutyens, director of the LCTIP.

The additional road improvement alternatives outlined in the project's report would reduce the projected travel time by about 10 minutes per trip, he said.

Lutyens emphasized that all of the proposed alternatives will be further refined and none of the proposed alternatives has been decided upon.

Route 53 cost criticized

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

Critics of the Route 53 project dispute state officials' claims that the proposed highway would significantly improve traffic congestion in Lake County and say the cost of the project could exceed $1 billion.

Mike Truppa, a spokesman for the Environmental Law and Policy Center, a regional environmental group opposed to the Route 53 extension, said plans to build the 26-mile stretch of highway between Buffalo Grove and Grayslake presents one of the "most significant challenges in state history."

"It's the most divisive, costly and unpopular scenario," Truppa said. "In a situation when there is so much opposition to Route 53, why build it?"

Truppa said the most current state estimates he has seen reported project the cost of Route 53 to be about $1.2 billion.

He said the Environmental Law and Policy Center conducted a study of its own last year. The study found a 10-cent tollway system hike would be needed to support a new Route 53 highway.

"We already know building Route 53 will result in a major toll hike," said Truppa.

Peter Harmet, assistant project manager for the Lake County Transportation Improvement Project, said he doesn't know where the group is coming up with its figures as to the project's cost.

Harmet said the last detailed cost estimates the state released about the project were in 1995. At that time, the cost of Route 53 was estimated at $615 million.

"The only detailed cost estimate that has been done so far is $615 million. Is that going to change? Yes. But they've put out a figure that's double that," he said.

Harmet said opponents of Route 53 are only focusing on the estimated cost of Route 53. There are other factors the state weighs in making its decision such as environmental impacts, displacements of homes and businesses of various routes and improvements in transportation performance.

He added that Route 53 is one of eight alternatives being considered, and each of the options has a cost associated with it.

"Any of the alternatives are going to have significant costs," he said.

Harmet did acknowledge that some type of funding mechanism would be needed to pay for any of the proposed road alternatives but indicated its too early to tell what that might involve.

"I'm glad he (Truppa) did acknowledge that a lot of revenue is going to be needed for any of these alternatives," said Harmet. "How that's going to be raised is not clear at this point. We've got to come up with the best set of alternatives, while minimizing environmental impacts."

Doing nothing is not an option, given the tremendous population increase projected in Lake County over the next 20 years, Harmet said. State estimates show nearly 250,000 new people will move to Lake County by the year 2020.

"Look what's happening population-wise in Lake (County) versus what's happening transportation-wise. Congestion is widespread. People are continuing to build at an explosive rate; development is outpacing the infrastructure. We need to focus on transportation solutions that are going to reasonably accommodate this growth."

Words of Wisdom from a Master Motivator

I've never met Zig Ziglar, but I hope to someday. Like tens of thousands of other people, his thoughts and words have affected my life.

I've read his book, "See You at the Top" numerous times. I've listened to several of his tapes repeatedly. His thoughts on goal setting, selling and personal success have helped me grow my career and become more successful.

I was excited when I received another book by Zig Ziglar as a gift. It is titled, "Zig Ziglar's Little Instruction Book." It is a delightful read and, like many of his previous works, it is filled with useful wisdom.

I'm not sure I can capture the essence of the book in this column, but I'll at least try to give you a glimpse of some of the key concepts. For me, Ziglar has always pointed the way toward serving God, developing a positive attitude and making the best of every situation you find yourself in.

Here are a few of the nuggets I found in Zig Ziglar's Little Instruction Book. I hope you enjoy them enough to get a copy of the book yourself.

Classic Ziglar

- Where you start is not as important as where you finish.
- It is not what happens to you that determines how far you go in life; it is what you do with what happens to you.
- We deplete nature's natural resources by using them up. We deplete man's natural resources by failing to use them.
- The Success Family has work as the father and integrity as the mother.
- Don't wait until you feel like taking a positive action. Take the action and then you will feel like doing it.
- Everyone gets twenty-four hours a day - sixty minutes for every hour and sixty seconds for every minute. No one can get any more; no one can get less. In this sense, everyone is truly equal. Now this one fact alone makes time the most precious of all commodities. This factor forces us to an inescapable conclusion: We've got to make our time work for us - it's the most perishable and nonnegotiable possession we have.
- The price of success is much lower than the price of failure.
- There is little you can learn from doing nothing.
- When you choose to be pleasant and positive in the way you treat others, you have also chosen, in most cases, how you are going to be treated by others.
- Motivation fuels that attitude that builds the confidence necessary to sustain the persistence.
- Check the records. There has never been an undisciplined person who was a champion. Regardless of the field of endeavor, you'll find this to be true.

At the top...

At the end of this little book, Ziglar closes with thirteen thoughts that will tell you when you're at the top. I'll share three of these little gems with you in closing this column.

Jungle Gym owner reinvests in business

Fitness center proprietor adds to offerings to keep client interest

By SANDY HARTOGH
Staff Reporter

The Jungle Gym, located at 2068 E. Grand Avenue in Lindenhurst, is celebrating its first-year anniversary by reinvesting in some new additions to existing programs and equipment.

"I was always told to invest money back into a business to make it better," says Al Roth, owner of Jungle Gym.

He has taken that advice to heart by incorporating three new programs into the gym's routine.

Aerobics kick boxing, a work-out that combines boxing punches with martial arts kicks, is the most popular, according to Roth.

"People just love it!" he said.

Roth has also introduced Rhinometrics, a high-intensity weight training class that he has developed. He teaches three different levels at the same time, incorporating dumbbells with a total body work-out.

"This class actually provides free personal training," he said.

program, which concentrates on high-intensity playing.

Fifteen Startrac spinning bicycles will soon be arriving on the scene, according to Roth.

Spinning is a stationary race bike program that gives an intense cardiovascular work-out. It is primarily aimed at achieving maximum energy output by adjusting the seat, handlebar position and resistance of the flywheel. The most popular aspect of this 12-year-old craze is that it actually simulates an outdoor bike ride.

"Spinning has been popular in affluent areas for quite some time," said Roth. "We're bringing it to our gym along with instructors trained by top professional cyclists."

More new cardio-equipment will be brought in by October of this year, according to Roth.

He welcomes competition from other fitness businesses, such as the new Gold's Gym being built in Gurnee, although he admitted that he may lose some of his 1200 members to the new facility.

"Gold's Gym will help motivate us to concentrate on making our classes even better," he said.

Roth's ultimate goal is for his gym to be a positive youth hang-out. His concerns over the growing rate of suicide among today's youth has inspired this vision.

"I want the young to get along with the older members of this gym," said Roth. "I want all generations to be able to work-out together."

they're building an addition to a house or whether it be (a large development like) Brooks Farms."

The Lake County Stormwater Management Commission (SMC) is hosting four workshops to inform local elected officials, village administrators, municipal enforcement officers and staff about the new regulations and enforcement provisions of the ordinance.

"We're doing everything we can to get the municipalities up to speed," said Leafblad.

The changes to the watershed ordinance were adopted by the board in July, the first changes that have been made since the original ordinance was adopted in October 1992.

Leafblad said the county and SMC plan to work cooperatively with village officials to ensure the new provisions are enforced. However, the SMC has the authority to step in if a municipality isn't doing its job of enforcing the ordinance.

"The county is committed to ensuring the watershed development ordinance is enforced," said Leafblad, adding, "There are a lot of serious ramifications if someone doesn't adhere to the WDO."

The ordinance sets minimum standards for new development in areas such as water detention, stormwater quality, floodplain preservation, soil erosion and sediment control.

"It's meant to ensure that existing development (or new development) doesn't exacerbate existing problems or create new problems in the areas of water quality, flood damage and natural resources," said Ward Miller, SMC chairman.

But local builders remain upset about the ordinance, which they say will stifle growth in the county.

"There's a 110 amendments to this ordinance, most of which can't be reasonably supported by any stretch of the imagination," said Mark Buschman, president of the Homeowners Association of Lake County, which represents about 300 members in the county.

While the revised ordinance is presently the "law of the land," Buschman said the battle over the watershed ordinance is "not completely over yet." Buschman also believes both the county and Stormwater Management Commission are overstepping their bounds by requiring village inspectors to enforce the new provisions, without input from municipal officials.

How To Survive The Job Search
By Nancy Sakol
Q: Our whole department was called into a staff meeting last week to discuss a new CSR program being implemented. When the meeting was over it was asked by the manager if anyone had any questions. I raised my hand at the end, after being pushed by my fellow employees for weeks, to ask about changing the dress code to a more casual workplace. While the question was left to little discussion, I heard about it the next day as I was called to the table by the manager and told the question brought up in the meeting was inappropriate. He told me that was not the type of question they were expecting after such a meeting and asked me to go back to work. Frankly, I don't see what he was so upset about. I am getting the cold shoulder and wonder if I should approach him again and ask why he is so upset. One of my co-workers suggested getting a petition together to get the dress code changed. What do you think?
Via E-mail
A: Let me say that I understand why your manager was upset. The way that you presented the question was in fact inappropriate. If you were called into a meeting for the purpose of discussing a new CSR program, that was the agenda. When it was asked of the group if there were any questions, that should of clearly have been understood that the questions they were willing to answer should have been pertinent to the meeting at hand. The first question to be received was that of something which apparently had nothing whatsoever to do with your meeting and may therefore have downgraded the seriousness for which your boss intended it to be taken. When employees come up with suggestions to better improve the company in any way, they should be written down and presented to your boss in private. Not in front of a room full of people where he or she is caught off-guard and backed into a corner. You would do much better sitting down (and I don't mean the whole group), in a professional way and presenting an idea where you can give the manager a chance to look over the idea before responding to it. Nix the idea of petition! That only says... "hey we all voted on it...now what's going to do?" I have both seen and heard of the aftermath of attempts like that in corporations, and believe me...you don't want to go there.

Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS

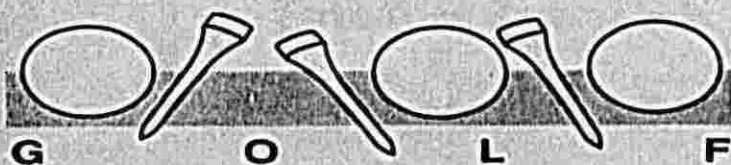

WHEN YOU NEED MAXIMUM DISTANCE FROM LIGHT TO MEDIUM ROUGH AND DIRECTION ISN'T TOO BIG A FACTOR, PLAY A LOW, HARD HOOK THAT WILL FLY LOW AND ROLL HARD.

POSITION THE BALL BACK IN YOUR STANCE WITH YOUR HANDS AHEAD. CLOSE THE CLUBFACE SLIGHTLY, SWING BACK STEADILY, THEN PUNCH DOWN AGGRESSIVELY INTO THE BACK OF THE BALL WITH YOUR LEFT HAND LEADING.
